REVIEW

OF

THE TRADE OF BRITISH INDIA

FOR THE OFFICIAL YEAR 1876-77.

Assistant Secretary to the Government of India,
Department of Revenue, Agriculture, and Commerce (Statistical Branch).

FOREIGN TRADE.

1. LEAVING out of consideration the three years 1863-64, 1864-65, and 1865-66, the total value of the trade of India during the year of review was considerably in excess of the value recorded at any previous period.

The three years mentioned exhibit indeed much larger results than the present year, but the circumstances of the trade of the country during that period were abnormal. The Civil War in the United States had deprived the cotton spinning industry of England of the raw material required to keep the mills in work, and in the crisis which ensued the eager demand for Indian cotton of any quality raised prices to a level which was unprecedented and which they will probably never under any circumstances again reach. These three years may therefore properly be left out of consideration in comparing the present value of the trade of India with the value recorded in former years.

2. For the ten years following 1865-66 the trade was as follows:—

	Rs.		Rs.
1866-67 (11 months)	86,54,31,429	1871-72 . .	1,06,99,16,094
1867-68	99,88,56,971	1872-73 . .	91,53,99,284
1868-69	1,05,54,50,728	1873-74 . .	94,26,08,880
1869-70	1,00,34,81,788	1874-75 . .	1,00,69,12,907
1870-71	95,71,20,744	1875-76 . .	1,02,58,66,594
Average of the five years . } .	97,60,68,332	Average of the five years . }	99,21,40,752

1876-77 . . . Rs. 1,11,71,63,364

The trade of the year therefore shews an increase of Rs. 9,12,96,770 or 8·90 per cent. over that of the previous year, and of 14·46 per cent. and 12·60 per cent. over the averages of the five years ending 1870-71 and 1875-76 respectively.

3. These figures are exclusive of the transactions on account of Government, the addition of which to the total brings the value of trade during the year up to Rs. 1,13,90,78,751.

4. The increase in trade is manifest under all heads except that of imports of merchandise which shewed a sensible decline. Imports of treasure and exports of goods (country and foreign) and of treasure all largely increased, the increase in the imports of treasure being particularly striking: under this head the trade rose from Rs. 5,30,07,224 to Rs. 11,43,61,180.

GOVERNMENT TRANSACTIONS.

5. Before proceeding to treat of the trade generally it is well to briefly review the transactions of Government, the value of which in the Accounts is kept separate from the totals of general trade.

The total recorded value of these transactions during each of the last five years was as follows:

Year.	Imports.	Exports.	Total of Imports and Exports.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73	1,40,15,554	3,85,679	1,44,01,233
1873-74	2,19,13,310	7,02,239	2,26,15,549
1874-75	1,57,68,508	7,95,676	1,65,64,184
1875-76	1,77,46,721	11,84,621	1,89,31,342
1876-77	2,06,07,915	13,07,472	2,19,15,387
Average	1,80,10,401	8,75,137	1,88,85,538

6. The imports principally consist of arms and ammunition, hardware and cutlery, boots, shoes and saddlery, liquors, woollen goods (these articles being mostly military stores), and machinery, metals, books, paper and stationery, railway and telegraph materials.

The exports, as was explained last year, consist of stores and treasure sent to Aden and the Persian Gulf for the establishments there.

7. The value of the paper and pasteboard imported during the year was nearly 12 lakhs of rupees, and it may reasonably be expected that the imports will be on a constantly increasing scale. Much of the paper is of a quality which the country is quite capable of producing, and it might perhaps be expedient to devise measures for supplying on the spot the greater part of the annual requirements of the State. As yet the manufacture of paper in the prisons has been limited to the production of an article of very inferior quality, fit only for packing or for the use of the most inferior native officials, and the processes are conducted on the rough native plan. It seems probable that the introduction of machinery into two or three of the larger prisons and the manufacture of the better classes of paper would be remunerative in affording a means of supplying the requirements of the public service to a material extent at a cheaper rate than by the importation of paper from England. The Government is already a manufacturer on a large scale for its needs in some directions—as for instance in the manufacture of arms, cement, chinchona, and leather—and with very successful results. The Government tannery at Cawnpore not only produces excellent leather, but has trained men who have already effected marked improvement in the quality of the leather-ware offered for sale in the Upper Provinces. An extension of the system of local manufacture, either directly through the agency of Government officers, or indirectly by the purchase of goods produced in the country, would perhaps be found beneficial alike to the interests of Government and to those of the manufacturing industry of the country at large. As regards paper, it is certain that India possesses enormous quantities of the raw material, and with the rapid extension of railway communication, the cost of transit of the material from the place of production to the mill is no longer an insuperable obstacle to the development of a considerable industry.

PROVINCIAL DISTRIBUTION OF TRADE.

8. The trade of the country was carried on at the ports of the littoral provinces in the proportions shewn below, for the last two years:

Province.		1875-76.		1876-77.

9. The trade of Sind and Madras shews a decline under imports and exports. In each of the other provinces there is a considerable increase. Under the head of imports there is a very large increase in Bombay and Burma; in the former of these two provinces the increase is due to exceedingly large imports of treasure, the import of merchandise having declined. Nearly three-fourths of the whole of the treasure imported into India during the year was landed in Bombay. The increase in the imports into Burma occurred under the head of goods, shewing that trade generally increased. In Bengal, as in Bombay, the imports of merchandise fell off, to be compensated by a largely increased flow of treasure. In the review of the trade of 1875-76, I noticed a large increase in the imports of merchandise into India and a decrease in the imports of treasure, adding that the accounts of 1876-77 would probably see this feature reversed. The accounts shew that this anticipation has been realised, the imports of merchandise generally having fallen from Rs. 37,11,26,682 to Rs. 35,36,71,766, while the imports of treasure have increased from Rs. 5,30,07,224 to Rs. 11,43,61,180.

10. Bombay and Bengal, it will be seen, represent between them 83 per cent. of the total trade, the share of each in the current year being tolerably equal. Last year the proportion was much more in favour of Bengal. The increase in the proportion taken by Bombay is due to the large quantities of silver which find their most convenient channel of distribution from Bombay, and also to the greatly increased exports of both gold and silver, the exports of the former having been a million sterling in excess of those of the previous year.

11. The decline in the trade of Madras must no doubt be attributed first to the rate of exchange and then to the drought and the subsequent famine which still afflicts a large part of that Presidency; while that of Sind is explained by the increase in the coasting trade with Bombay, whence European goods are sent in increasing quantities to Kurrachee in supersession of direct imports.

12. The following table shews the share of the total trade with foreign countries which centred in the five principal ports of India, viz., Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Rangoon, and Kurrachee, during the years 1875-76 and 1876-77 :—

	1875-76.	1876-77.

13. The total value of the trade of these five ports was in —

14. Calcutta and Bombay between them had 80·5 per cent. of the trade of 1875-76 and 82·8 per cent. of that of 1876-77. For the first time since the year 1869-70 Bombay shews larger commercial transactions than her rival in the Bay of Bengal, being about 85 lakhs ahead: in the previous year Calcutta was ahead of Bombay by more than four times this sum. The increase in the trade of Bombay is due to very large imports of silver and exports of gold and silver. Following after the five principal ports above named, the following fifteen ports had most of the foreign trade of the year:

Ports.	Value of trade. Rupees.	Percentage on the total trade of British India.
Tuticorin (Madras)	1,11,24,546	1·00

Chittagong (Bengal)	8,69,236	·08

These fifteen ports and the five others of which particulars have been given above shared between them 99 per cent. of the whole trade of the year.

15. The foreign trade of Bengal, Bombay, and Sind is practically confined to the chief ports in those provinces, viz., Calcutta, Bombay, and Kurrachee, this last named port being in fact the only port worthy of the name possessed by Sind. In the Bombay Presidency there is a large number of ports, some fairly well adapted for commerce, but the convergence of the great railway lines in Bombay gives to that city advantages which, together with the natural excellence of the harbour and the facilities for the landing and shipping of goods afforded by the Port Trust and private wharfingers, enable it to concentrate not only the greater part of the commerce of the Presidency, but also to monopolise a material part of the import trade of Sind, which province largely draws its supplies from Bombay instead of importing them direct. Thus, while the direct imports of merchandise from foreign ports into Kurrachee amounted in value during the year to only 32 lakhs of rupees, the imports from ports in other presidencies of India (mostly from Bombay) amounted to no less than 143 lakhs. A substantial proportion of the exports of Kurrachee is also directed to Bombay for re-export thence to foreign countries.

16. In Bengal the only port besides Calcutta which carries on a trade with foreign countries is Chittagong. The ports of Orissa have a few transactions with countries outside of Indian limits, but they are so small as to be totally inappreciable. The trade of these ports has developed largely of late years, but the development has been in the direction of traffic with Calcutta, between which city and the ports of Balasore there is now frequent and regular steam communication. The foreign trade of Chittagong is confined principally to the import of salt and the export of rice and a little cotton. The trade in piece-goods, metals, liquors, and other staple imports is carried on viâ Calcutta, with which Chittagong has fortnightly communication by steam. All the tea produced in the district is sent to Calcutta to be re-exported thence to Europe. Chittagong is tolerably well situated for commerce, being fairly adapted as the outlet for a portion of the produce of the districts of Eastern Bengal. There is good accommodation for vessels, and the river Karnafuli, on which the town is situated eleven miles from its mouth, is safe and good. The trade however has been declining for the last four years. The ruined jetty, dismantled houses, and stranded hulks lying on the river bank still bear melancholy testimony to the disastrous effects of the great cyclone of the 31st October 1876. There are now only two European mercantile firms remaining in the place, the trade having mostly passed into the hands of natives. The cultivation of tea seems to be about the only thing in which progress is maintained in Chittagong. The district is well suited for tea, the yield being on the average about five hundred pounds an acre against four hundred in Assam and Cachar, and the cultivation is increasing, about 600,000lbs. being now sent annually to the Calcutta market for sale. The decline in the trade of Chittagong must be attributed immediately to the great cyclone and its consequences, but there is a permanent cause at work too in the absence of steam communication between Chittagong and the eastern districts of Bengal. Steamers on the Megna plying between Chittagong and Naraingunge would bring down rice, jute, and other produce for export from Chittagong. At present the only communication is by country craft of unwieldy shape and more or less ricketty construction. For these the navigation of the estuary of the Megna during the continuance of the south-west monsoon is impracticable, and at all times the sea is rough enough in the Sundeep Channel before the corner is turned into the Chittagong river to be a source of danger to the smaller native vessels. Chittagong is thus for some portion of the year cut off from communication with the inland districts of Bengal, and it cannot be expected that, under these circumstances, anything like a considerable trade can be developed. But if regular steam communication were established, produce would come down in increasing quantities for export from Chittagong, and the existence of steam communication with the inland districts would be followed by steam communication between Chittagong and Europe. It has been hinted that the diversion to Chittagong of any portion of the produce now sent by circuitous and tedious routes to Calcutta would be detrimental to the interests of the latter port. But experience tells us that increased facilities for the disposal of produce are always followed by increased production, and it is by no means probable that the interests of Calcutta would suffer by the adoption of the measures suggested for the development of the trade of Chittagong. It has been said too that the Megna is not a safe river for steam navigation, but this statement is more or less conjectural, and it has yet to be proved by actual trial that steamers cannot safely ply between Naraingunge and Chittagong.

17. The chief port of Burma does not monopolise the trade of the province to quite such an extent as the chief ports of Bengal, Bombay, and Sind. Rangoon last year had only a little more than 73 per cent. of the trade of the province, the rest being distributed between Akyab, Bassein, and Maulmain. These three ports export rice in large quantities, this grain being in fact the staple on which Akyab and Bassein entirely depend for their importance. Maulmain exports teak timber in addition to rice. The direct trade of these ports with foreign countries is confined to exports, their imports being mostly supplied in the case of Akyab viâ Calcutta and in the case of Bassein and Maulmain from Rangoon.

18. Akyab possesses an excellent harbour, affording safe and convenient anchorage at all times of the year to vessels of large size. Except for about four months in the year however, i.e., while the rice season lasts, this fine port is practically deserted except for the passing visits of the mail steamers of the British India Company. During the rice season Akyab awakens to life: the creeks are full of boats laden with paddy, the mills are busy separating the rice from the husk, and the harbour is full of shipping taking the rice on board for conveyance to Europe. There is no reason why the prosperity of Akyab should depend upon the export of rice alone. The Arakan hill tracts stretching away behind Akyab offer a fine field for agricultural enterprise in the cultivation of cotton, tobacco, and other staples. The island of Ramree, a few hours distant by steamer, abounds with petroleum of good quality, and this article is also known to occur on the Greater and Lesser Borongos, large islands directly opposite Akyab. There is much wealth in the vicinity of Akyab, in petroleum, coal, steatite, and perhaps other minerals, and, with the agricultural capabilities of the hill tracts and the cheapness of labour* as compared with other parts of Burma, this port has a fair prospect before it of becoming, with a judicious application of energy and capital, an important commercial centre.

19. Bassein on the other hand will always remain a rice port merely. This town is situated in the delta of the Irrawaddy, the alluvial soil of which is best adapted for the cultivation of rice. The rice season here resembles in its aspects the rice season elsewhere in Burma: creeks crowded with boats laden with paddy, mills at work from morning to night, the surface of the river and creeks covered inches thick with paddy husks, and shipping busily taking in the cleaned rice from the mills. These rice mills are a feature in the ports of Burma. There is nothing like them in Continental India—(except at Port Canning, and there the mills are a failure),—where the rice is husked in the interior of the districts by the family of the cultivator before it is sent to the market for disposal. In Burma the cultivator is too well-to-do to care about undertaking the trouble of husking the rice, and he leaves that to be done by the European purchaser at the port of shipment. These mills are worked by powerful machinery moved by steam, and the coal which is required by them forms the main article of import from foreign countries into Akyab and Bassein, the latter port importing also a certain quantity of salt. Bassein is supplied with all her other imports from Rangoon in river steamers which ply twice a week through the narrow tidal creeks, lined with mangrove jungle, which form the Burmese Sunderbunds between Rangoon and Bassein. The steamers belong to the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company and are specially constructed for the service. Light as they are in draught, in the dry weather they are often stuck in the mud for hours together. These steamers do a very large trade in the carriage of passengers and cargo between Rangoon and Bassein, but no record of the actual value of the trade has as yet been attempted.

20. Maulmain, in addition to her export trade in rice and teak, also has some direct imports from foreign ports, a good portion of these being from the Straits and consisting of articles consumed or dealt in by the Chinese. The largest part of the imports into Maulmain however is effected viâ Rangoon and Calcutta. The trade of Maulmain generally does not appear to be on the increase, and some of those who are interested in the town are apt to refer with some soreness to Rangoon as having usurped the place of chief port of the province which ought rightfully to appertain to Maulmain. This however is a mistaken view: the truth is that Rangoon has naturally far greater advantages for attracting trade than Maulmain. Rangoon is the natural outlet for the whole of the produce of the fertile valley of the Irrawaddy, including Independent Burma and the largest, wealthiest, and most thickly populated section of British Burma, and is also the most convenient centre for the distribution of imported goods into those tracts. Maulmain is supported merely by the rice of the neighbouring districts and the teak forests of the hill ranges bordering Siamese territory at the back of Maulmain, sixteen timber and seven rice mills being supported by the trade. Rangoon on the other hand has most of the rice of Pegu watered by the Irrawaddy and its affluents, and the cutch, lac, caoutchouc, cotton, orpiment, and jade brought down from Upper Burma and Western China. The railway line recently opened to Prome and the regular steam communication on the Irrawaddy between Rangoon, Mandalay, and Bhamo afford excellent facilities for the further development of trade at Rangoon. This port is certainly one of the most rising places in India.

21. The other ports of Burma are Kyouk-hpyoo, Tavoy, and Mergui. Their trade is insignificant. Kyouk-hpyoo is a small station on the northern extremity of the island of Ramree. Some years ago when it was a military cantonment, the presence of European troops caused a certain demand for goods which died out with the removal of the troops on account of the unhealthiness of the station. The harbour is not considered secure during the south-west monsoon, and the port moreover is ill adapted for trade. Most of the trade of the island finds its natural outlet in the town of Ramree, situated at the southern extremity of the island and separated from Kyouk-hpyoo by jungle and marsh land. Most of the rice grown on the island would be more conveniently shipped from Ramree, and the best petroleum occurs in the neighbourhood of the town. A trade in the oil of the Calophyllum inophyllum might be developed in Kyouk-hpyoo, where the tree flourishes. The oil is highly esteemed in India for medicinal and illuminating purposes, but no attempt appears as yet to have been made to utilise it in Burma. The workings for petroleum are carried on entirely by natives on a very small scale and in a rude primitive way. It may be said in short that there is practically no trade at Kyouk-hpyoo and that it is unlikely that there ever will be any.

22. Tavoy and Mergui resemble each other very much in the point of view of trade. There is a regular though not extensive intercourse carried on by steamers and native craft between these places and the Siamese ports of Tonkah (or Tacompah), Kopah, and Renoung, lower down the coast of the Peninsula, and with the Straits, but the greatest part of the trade of both ports is with Maulmain and Rangoon. The imports consist principally of piece-goods and twist, raw silk, tobacco, opium, and betelnuts, with durians and mangosteens. The exports are mainly salted and dried fish and gnapee (a paste made of decomposed shell fish and amazingly relished by the Burmans), canes and rattans, mother-of-pearl shells, unrefined sugar, leaves of the dhunnee (Nipa fruticans), universally used for thatching along the coast of Burma, rice, and tin, this last article being exported from Malewoon, in the Mergui district. The Nipa fruticans abounds on these coasts, thickly fringing the water's edge on the Tavoy river. It is a very useful tree, capable of being turned to account much more largely than at present in the manufacture of sugar.

The port of Mergui offers good accommodation for vessels of moderate size, but Tavoy is situated some thirty miles up a shallow river which at low water opposite the town can in some places be traversed on foot. Vessels of anything but a very small draught must lie many miles below the town and there is, under present circumstances, no hope of any material increase of trade in this place.

23. In the presidency of Madras the trade is somewhat more evenly distributed among the ports than in other presidencies, the chief port having little more than half the total trade of the presidency. Large quantities of coffee, spices, and cocoanut oil are exported from the ports of the Malabar coast. The Coromandel ports also largely export rice, cotton, coloured piece-goods, teel seed, and sugar. The port of Coringa-cum-Coconada on this coast has an active intercourse with Burma, sending thither tobacco and crowds of labourers who stay in Burma during the rice season, returning afterwards to their homes with their earnings. An ordinary cooly in Burma earns from 12 annas to a rupee a day during the season and these men bring considerable sums back with them at the end of the working season. Between Ceylon and the ports of Tuticorin and Cochin there are extensive transactions in merchandise, and here also there is a large emigration of labourers to the Ceylon coffee districts.

TRADE WITH FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

24. The largest proportion of our interchanges with foreign countries is conducted with the United Kingdom, which has had on an average nearly 61 per cent. of the trade of British India during the last five years.

The principal countries with which India is most connected commercially are entered below, arranged according to the importance of the direct relations with them during the year:

	Imports.	Exports.	Total.	Percentage of share.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
United Kingdom	37,53,83,868	29,31,31,499	66,85,15,367	59·8
China	2,12,63,602	13,44,19,826	15,56,83,428	16·9
France	59,15,380	5,43,74,351	6,02,89,731	5·4
Ceylon	93,50,797	3,39,16,831	4,32,67,628	3·8
Straits Settlements	1,04,46,969	2,47,19,501	3,51,66,470	3·1
Italy	1,36,57,792	1,41,04,052	2,77,61,844	2·5
United States	17,23,703	1,89,56,096	2,06,79,799	1·8
Austria	11,93,745	1,42,79,829	1,54,73,574	1·4
Mauritius	25,39,870	1,28,08,602	1,53,48,472	1·3
Arabia (excluding Aden)	70,05,676	60,02,667	1,30,08,343	1·1
Persia	40,66,539	74,42,630	1,15,09,169	1·03

Quite 95 per cent. of the trade of India was confined to these eleven countries, the two first on the list (the United Kingdom and China) having taken up nearly three-fourths of the trade.

25. The United Kingdom continues to keep the largest half of the Indian trade, the percentage having been in—

1874-75 . . . . . 62 per cent. (nearly).
1875-76 . . . . . 59·6 per cent.
1876-77 . . . . . 59·8 per cent.

In the first of these three years the trade with Suez, now included under Egypt, was grouped under the United Kingdom, and the change in classification accounts for the apparent diminution in the following year.

The most considerable import from the United Kingdom consists of cotton twist and manufactured goods. The value of these amounted during the year to nearly 18 crores and 29 lakhs, being about 48·7 per cent. of the total imports from that country including treasure, and about 61·5 per cent of the imports of merchandise excluding treasure. The imports of these goods declined slightly in value as compared with the previous year; but the quantities on the whole exhibit an increase except under the head of grey piece-goods.

The other most important imports from the United Kingdom are apparel, coals, hardware and cutlery (including plated-ware), liquors of all kinds (wines, spirits, and beer), machinery and mill-work, metals (chiefly iron and copper), materials for railway construction, salt, and woollen piece-goods.

The value of each of these classes of goods imported during the year and the proportion borne by each to the whole trade in merchandise are shewn below:

	Rs.
1. Apparel	39,50,092, or 1·3	per cent.
2. Coals	91,74,005, or 3·08	,,
3. Cotton twist and manufactures	18,28,73,903, or 61·5	,,
4. Hardware and cutlery	42,96,742, or 1·4	,,
5. Liquors	1,03,76,299, or 3·5	,,
6. Machinery	87,59,751, or 2·9	,,
7. Metals	3,02,64,412, or 10·2	,,
8. Railway plant	68,68,531, or 2·3	,,
9. Salt	36,80,994, or 1·2	,,
10. Woollen goods	79,84,754, or 2·7	,,

The total value of these ten classes of goods was Rs. 26,82,29,483, being 90 per cent. of the whole value of merchandise received from the United Kingdom. It is evident that the bulk of the English trade with India consists of cotton goods and metals and metal-ware, including under this head hardware and cutlery, machinery, and railway plant. These heads comprise more than 78 per cent. of the trade. If to these we add coals and woollen goods we have nearly 84 per cent. of the whole imports from England.

The principal articles of Indian export to England are coffee, cotton, indigo, rice, wheat (an export of quite recent development), hides and skins, raw and dressed, jute, linseed, rapeseed, sugar, tea, and raw wool.

The value of the exports of these twelve articles and the proportion to the total exports of Indian merchandise to the United Kingdom of each of them are shewn below:

	Rs.
1. Coffee	76,65,584, or	2·8 per cent.
2. Cotton	6,58,62,482, or	23·8 „
3. Indigo	1,76,92,242, or	6·4 „
4. Rice	2,59,43,475, or	9·4 „
5. Wheat	1,47,69,240, or	5·3 „
6. Hides and skins	2,35,38,140, or	8·5 „
7. Jute	2,21,16,811, or	8·0 „
8. Linseed	1,97,89,049, or	7·1 „
9. Rapeseed	79,82,367, or	2·9 „
10. Sugar	71,47,918, or	2·6 „
11. Tea	2,60,11,708, or	9·4 „
12. Wool	1,07,73,194, or	3·9 „

The sum of these twelve items amounts to Rs. 24,92,92,210, being about 90 per cent. of the whole value of Indian produce exported to England.

Compared with previous years the imports of merchandise from the United Kingdom increased largely during the year 1875-76 to fall again in 1876-77, as will be seen by the figures below:

Imports from the United Kingdom.

	Rs.
1872-73	23,98,60,527
1873-74	25,35,44,498
1874-75	28,98,04,892
1875-76	30,51,81,232
1876-77	29,75,24,433

The decline in 1876-77 was caused by a decrease in the value of apparel, cotton twist, and grey and coloured piece-goods, hardware and cutlery, liquors, machinery, salt, and woollen piece-goods. There were also smaller decreases in various other items, while on the other hand certain articles such as coals, white piece-goods, metals, railway plant, and silk piece-goods, increased in value to a certain extent, the nett result of the transactions of the year being however a decline of 76½ lakhs, which was much more than balanced by an enormous increase in the treasure sent to India from England.

Exports of Indian produce to the United Kingdom.

	Rs.
1872-73	27,82,92,130
1873-74	27,85,17,528
1874-75	27,31,08,571
1875-76	27,77,88,817
1876-77	27,65,57,785

The values apparently exhibit on the whole a tendency to decline, the cause of which is to be found in the great reduction which has been effected both in the quantity and value of the cotton exported to England during the last two years. As compared with 1874-75, the exports of cotton last year and the year before were as follow:

	Cwt.	Rs.
1874-75	3,891,020	10,57,64,156
1875-76	2,964,913	7,85,07,495
1876-77	2,605,891	6,58,62,482

The fact is that with the present range of prices in Liverpool for raw cotton and the abundant supplies from the United States and elsewhere, combined with the depressed condition of the English manufacturing industry, production having apparently outrun consumption, there is little prospect of a rise in the price of Indian cotton or of the renewal of active demand for it. Fortunately for the future of this great staple, the closure of outlets for it in England or other countries is being to a material extent compensated by increased consumption in the Indian cotton mills.

Amongst other articles sent to England, decreases appear in coffee, indigo, jute, shell-lac, castor oil, saltpetre, linseed, teak wood, and raw wool. In lac and raw wool the decrease is one of price not of quantity, but in the other articles there is an absolute reduction in quantity as well as in value. On the other hand considerable increases are observed in wheat, hides and skins, sugar, and tea, in quantity as well as in value. Rice and rapeseed fell off in quantity but increased in value.

26. Next to the United Kingdom China occupies the most important place in the record of our trade with foreign countries. The value of the trade last year was more than 15½ crores, being nearly 14 per cent. of our total trade. The bulk of this sum is the value of opium sent to China from India, our imports from that country and our exports of other goods thither being comparatively of small importance.

The imports form a long list, but the items mostly are of small amount severally, the principal being those named below:

	Rs.
1. Copper	8,52,125
2. Silk (raw)	34,90,515
3. Silk (manufactured)	14,11,795
4. Sugar	11,18,225
5. Tea	12,10,529

These five articles constituted nearly 73 per cent. of the total imports of merchandise from China during the year. Under the head of silk, both raw and manufactured, there was a considerable decline last year, and tea also exhibits a great decrease. The trade as a whole fell very much below the level of 1875-76, but the exports increased far more than proportionately. The following figures shew the imports of goods from China and the exports thither of articles of Indian origin for the last five years:

	Imports. Rs.	Exports. Rs.
1872-73	1,34,78,745	12,07,43,476
1873-74	1,39,65,655	11,43,13,611
1874-75	1,51,97,498	11,59,00,654
1875-76	1,51,79,837	11,43,44,600
1876-77	1,10,98,593	12,57,83,072

The value of opium under the head of exports was as follows:—

	Rs.
1872-73	10,52,96,735
1873-74	10,27,44,216
1874-75	10,86,26,944
1875-76	9,77,67,007
1876-77	11,17,41,208

The only other considerable exports (of Indian origin) to China are raw cotton and cotton twist, and, in smaller proportion, gunny bags and saltpetre. The trade in both twist and gunny bags is of quite recent development, as will be seen from the following figures:

	Twist.	Gunny bags and cloth.
	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73	6,54,360	54,868
1873-74	7,89,811	49,583
1874-75	8,36,715	1,12,227
1875-76	20,44,139	1,31,676
1876-77	30,39,140	8,40,691

It appears that Bombay-made twist is suited to the Chinese market, where it is much liked. The trade has increased rapidly, and judging from the accounts of the current year is still on the increase, the value of the exports to the end of September (six months) having amounted to Rs. 29,81,209, being nearly as much as in the whole of the previous twelve months. Indian piece-goods do not make such rapid progress as twist in markets external to India, but it may be hoped that in course of time our cotton mills will find good customers for their shirtings in the neighbouring countries. Manchester piece-goods are clearly not much to the liking of the Chinese, and the Americans are trying to oust them from the market altogether to the benefit of their own goods. There appears to be no particular reason why Indian grey goods should not be able to successfully compete in these markets with either English or American goods of similar qualities.

It is satisfactory to see the increase in the value of gunny bags and cloth (mostly bags) exported to China. If this market is properly worked there can be little question that the manufacturing industry of India in jute and cotton will receive ample support from consumers in China.

The export of raw cotton to China hardly seems to develope. The exports last year were nearly 165,000 cwt. less than in 1875-76, and though the quantity is very much larger than in 1874-75, yet the exports of that year were far smaller than in the two previous years. Whether China takes Indian cotton or not depends a good deal upon the outturn of the cotton crop in that country, deficiencies in short seasons being made up by increased consumption of cotton from Bengal, i.e., of cotton produced in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab but exported from Calcutta.

27. The total imports from France of merchandise during the last five years are as follow:—

	Rs.
1872-73	35,94,251
1873-74	32,20,681
1874-75	30,45,477
1875-76	52,93,481
1876-77	46,35,036

The principal articles imported are apparel, liquors, chiefly brandy, and silk piece-goods. The value of each of these classes of goods last year was—

	Rs.
Apparel	8,38,758	or 74·3 per cent. of the whole imports.
Liquors	18,15,857
Silks	7,86,099

Under the head of liquors, brandy represents a value of Rs. 13,97,459. The other articles imported from France (a tolerably long list) come in small quantities and require no notice. No doubt, as has been said before in the review of last year's trade and elsewhere, the values recorded in the accounts by no means represent the value of all the goods of French origin consumed in British India, large quantities of wines and spirits, apparel, silks and other goods being sent to India viâ the United Kingdom. But it is doubtful whether for a long time to come any material increase in the consumption of French goods in India can be expected. This country requires mainly cotton clothing for the mass of the people, copper and iron for their domestic utensils, machinery for the new manufacturing industries, and salt for consumption in those provinces where it can be landed cheaply enough to compete with salt of local origin. These articles, with hardware and cutlery, form the bulk of our imports, and France cannot compete with England in their production and supply to the markets of the east. What France can send us is mostly confined to the finer classes of manufactures, more luxuries than necessities, and the population of India is too poor to support an extensive trade in them. The imports from France are hardly needed in India except for the Anglo-Indian community and that comparatively small number of wealthy natives who have a taste for the adornment of their houses with gilt-framed mirrors and ormolu clocks, and of their persons with silks, satins, and velvets overlaid with gold lace.

The exports of Indian goods to France are far in excess of the imports from that country—

	Rs.
1872-73	2,66,80,881
1873-74	3,11,85,800
1874-75	4,42,65,708
1875-76	4,51,06,717
1876-77	5,34,75,792

The principal exports are coffee, cotton, indigo, linseed, rapeseed, teel or gingelly seed, and raw silk. Of these, coffee, cotton, indigo, gingelly seed, and silk are regular staple exports, sent in large quantities annually to France. Linseed and rapeseed, however, are comparatively new in connection with the direct trade to France; and the year of report also shewed a considerable development in the trade in wheat and sugar. On the other hand, woollen shawls (mostly Kashmir fabrics) have dwindled down in value to but a fifth of the exports of former years. The following table shews the trade in the principal articles in 1876-77, and the proportion borne by each to the total value of exports of Indian produce:—

	Rs.
Coffee	38,74,785, or	7·2 per cent.
Cotton	1,93,25,179, or	36·1 ,,
Indigo	43,78,320, or	8·2 ,,
Wheat	22,14,417, or	4·1 ,,
Linseed	40,63,676, or	7·6 ,,
Rapeseed	18,01,197, or	3·3 ,,
Teel seed	77,43,656, or	14·5 ,,
Silk	41,55,114, or	7·8 ,,
Sugar	7,25,032, or	1·3 ,,

These nine articles constituted about 90 per cent. of our exports to France during the year.

The comparatively large export of wheat cannot be regarded as an indication of a regularly increasing trade, for it is improbable that France will, save under exceptional circumstances, take Indian wheat largely, a good crop in that country sufficing for the needs of the population, whereas the area under wheat in England is wholly insufficient for the needs of the people, which must yearly be supplemented by large foreign imports. In fact, in the first six months of the current year the exports were but little more than a sixth of those of the corresponding period of 1876-77. The increase in the exports of sugar also must be regarded as exceptional, the result of a failure in the French beet-root crop. But in other articles it may perhaps be fairly inferred that the increase of trade is promising. It is not to be forgotten that exports were greatly stimulated by the rate of exchange, but after all there can be no doubt that India is capable of supplying, and France of consuming, very much larger quantities of articles than are now sent to that country. There are two special reasons which operate against the development of trade, viz., first, the incapacity of France to strike out a large export trade to India, and second, the heavy customs duties imposed by the French tariff on many articles of Indian produce, such as coffee, pepper, and others. As long as France has no freight to fill the ships of the French mercantile marine trading with India, those ships will not be in a position to compete as regards return freights with British ships, and the latter will possess practically the monopoly of the carrying trade. This being the case, it must be expected that a considerable proportion of articles sent from India will ultimately reach the French market through England, and then their consumption is checked by a surtaxe d'entrepôt, while other oppressively heavy taxes are laid upon articles imported direct.

The decline in the trade in shawls is noteworthy. The figures of the value of the exports are appended:

	Rs.
1869-70	13,83,461
1870-71	5,95,379
1871-72	9,34,081
1872-73	19,20,694
1873-74	11,30,681
1874-75	9,49,541
1875-76	6,39,018
1876-77	4,42,678

This was a comparatively important branch of trade in former years, French agents residing at Amritsar and Srinagar for the purpose of ordering shawls, superintending their manufacture, and making money advances to the weavers. The war of 1870-71 caused a sudden collapse in the trade, and a change in fashion gave it what (for the time at least) must be considered its deathblow. The shawl industry perhaps would not have suffered very materially from the loss of its French customers if it had not at the same time lost a considerable section of its customers in India. Formerly every respectable native, or at any rate every native who asserted his respectability, thought the possession of a Kashmir shawl or shawls was essential. But in these days the wearing of shawls is not by any means so universal as it was some years ago, and in Bengal and other Provinces the importation of cheap English woollen shawls has completely driven out the Kashmir hand fabrics from hundreds of households. The shawl weavers of Amritsar and their brethren in Kashmir are in a very bad way. There may be a revival in the trade hereafter, but there is no present sign of one.

The direct export of raw jute to France has fallen off very materially; in fact in the year 1876-77 not more than a hundred tons were shipped, compared with nearly six thousand tons in the previous year. But the French manufacturers take large stocks of jute from the English market, with which it seems more convenient for them to deal, as regards jute as well as many other articles, in preference to direct intercourse with India. No manufactured jute is sent to France from India, and it is not probable that a large trade in these manufactures will ever be established with the countries of Western Europe.

28. Ceylon follows next after France in the point of view of the magnitude of trade with this country during the year. The imports of merchandise thence amounted in value to very nearly fifty-four lakhs of rupees, this sum being substantially in excess of the imports of the four previous years. The most important articles were:

	Rs.
Coffee	2,19,031
Cotton goods	27,61,733
Fruits and vegetables	2,20,550
Grain and pulse	6,48,282
Betelnuts	7,11,034
Wood and timber	1,26,195

These articles constituted nearly 87 per cent. of the whole imports of the year. The import of food-grains from Ceylon into India is not a regular trade: on the contrary Ceylon generally receives very large supplies of rice and other grains from India to supplement the local deficiency of foodstuffs caused by the occupation of the land with coffee, spices, and other more valuable products. The scarcity in Southern India interfered with the supply of rice thence, the exports having fallen from 1,838,705 cwt. to 1,195,859 cwt., but very largely increased supplies were drawn from Bengal, which province sent to Ceylon 2,366,293 cwt., as compared with 649,329 cwt. in 1875-76.

Of the cotton goods imported the great bulk consists of grey piece-goods, the value of which in the year was Rs. 24,24,741.

The average value of the exports of Indian produce to Ceylon during the four years ending 1875-76 amounted to Rs. 1,64,97,446. During the year 1876-77 the value was Rs. 2,27,01,945, and there was therefore a considerable increase, chiefly under the heads of animals, living, grain (rice), cotton handkerchiefs (coloured), gingelly oil, manures, and provisions.

The principal articles of export were:

	Rs.
Animals, living	10,56,643
Cotton goods	16,36,349
Grain and pulse	1,49,11,731
Manures	4,89,264
Oils	7,58,718
Provisions	5,05,261
Seeds	1,98,556
Soap	1,12,700
Spices	3,31,152
Sugar	3,04,982
Wood and timber	2,70,792

These articles formed about 91 per cent. of the total exports, grain and pulse alone being 65·6 per cent. The list of the others is long, but the value of each is mostly comparatively small. A considerable part of the trade between Ceylon and India, it must be remembered, is practically a coasting trade carried on between the island and the neighbouring shores of Southern and Western India, and the traffic, though active and on the whole important, is spread over a very large number of articles individually of small importance.

The increase in the exports of manures merits attention. The figures for the last five years are as follow:

	Tons.	Rs.
1872-73	1,668	39,630
1873-74	3,027	71,267
1874-75	4,204	1,29,277
1875-76	4,623	1,51,751
1876-77	16,865	4,89,264

This manure is mostly sent over from Southern India, a great portion consisting of cow dung manure from Tinnevelly, where it is worth 7 Rs. a ton, while in Colombo it is worth Rs. 30. Whether the agricultural districts can spare such quantities of manure for the supply of another country's coffee plantations is doubtful: or perhaps it would be more correct to say that it is certain that they cannot. There is not one ounce of superfluous manure in the country: there is in fact far from enough, while a good deal of what we have is wasted by reason of the ignorance in some cases and prejudices in others of native cultivators. The manure now being exported is a serious loss to the country, for which the few lakhs of rupees received in return are no adequate compensation. From Bengal also much oil-cake is sent to Ceylon, the value of the exports in 1876-77 having reached over Rs. 9,35,000. It may be said with confidence that this cake had much better have been kept in the country to feed the wretched, half starved live stock of the agricultural community.

29. The trade with the Straits stands on about the same level as that with Ceylon in point of value. Between the two ports of Penang and Singapore and the principal ports in India there is constant interchange of goods by means of regular lines of steamers. The largest part of the traffic is carried by the opium steamers which at fixed intervals ply from Calcutta and Bombay to Hong-Kong and back, and a considerable share is taken by the coasting steamers of the British India Steam Navigation Company which provide weekly communication between Calcutta, Rangoon, and the Straits. A third line of steamers carries a good deal of the local traffic between the Straits and the Burman ports. Besides these, other steamers, sailing vessels, and native craft keep up frequent communication. Singapore is, besides being the outlet for the productions of the Settlement, admirably adapted from its geographical position for an entrepôt, and accordingly it forms a magazine for the reception and distribution of merchandise going to or exported from the islands of the Eastern Archipelago, Siam and Cochin-China, China, and Manila.

The imports from the Straits in 1876-77, valued altogether at Rs. 93,73,415, consisted chiefly of the following articles:

	Rs.
Canes and rattans	2,12,386
Drugs and medicines	1,93,036
Gums and resins	4,53,124
Spirits	1,94,778
Tin	17,49,798
Provisions	3,49,509
Silk (raw)	7,57,448
Silk (manufactured)	3,68,300
Spices	23,54,896
Sugar	3,39,995
Tea	1,53,527
Tobacco	2,80,111

These articles formed nearly 80 per cent. of the whole imports. There was a general though not great decrease of trade as compared with the previous year, but the figures are still very much higher than in the three years preceding 1875-76. In tin there was a large increase.

The spices imported consist mainly of betelnuts (for the Burmese) and of pepper. The provisions are to a great extent imported for the consumption of the Chinese resident in Burma, who carry their peculiar tastes with them wherever they go. These people, it is believed, are very active smugglers of goods between the Straits and India.

Of the exports of Indian goods more than half the total value is to be ascribed to opium. The following articles comprise the staples of the trade:

	Rs.
Opium	1,19,09,695
Cotton (raw)	3,89,308
Cotton (manufactured, including twist and yarn).	4,76,590
Rice and paddy	33,67,394
Precious stones and pearls, and jewellery	3,57,809
Jute manufactures	7,25,308
Provisions	3,52,792
Silk goods	1,25,886
Jade stone	6,51,333
Wax	6,39,014

The total value of the exports of Indian goods having amounted to Rs. 2,13,69,225, the combined value of these ten articles was nearly 89 per cent. of the whole, and that of opium alone came to 55·7 per cent. The export of rice fell off, but wheat increased a good deal: the trade in wheat however is unimportant. Manufactures of jute (principally in the form of gunny bags) also declined materially, and there was a slight decrease in the value of opium. Increases are apparent in jade stone and wax.

On the whole, the transactions of the year exhibit a decline in the export of goods of Indian origin, as will be seen from the following figures:

	Rs.
1872-73	1,68,89,881
1873-74	1,73,99,637
1874-75	1,93,72,395
1875-76	2,41,19,167
1876-77	2,13,69,225

Although the value of the exports did not maintain the high level of 1875-76, it was considerably above the level of previous years.

30. The development of the export trade from India to Italy since the opening of the Suez Canal is worthy of attention. The import trade from that country has not increased in the same proportion, and indeed has hardly progressed at all, for the same reason which operates against the development of imports from France, viz., that Italy has no merchandise which can, in the present condition of India, be largely taken by the people of this country. The Italian imports are mostly luxuries, such as apparel, corals, beads and false pearls, brandy marble, and silk goods. Italy also sends us some cotton twist and piece-goods, and metals, but it is probable that these merely pass through Italy on their way from Germany. The total value of the imports during the year was Rs. 33,40,092, as compared with Rs. 41,06,493 in 1875-76, but the trade of the year was a good deal in excess of the trade of the three years previous to 1875-76. The staple articles were—.

	Rs.
Apparel	1,12,462
Corals	5,97,782
Cotton twist	2,13,412
Cotton goods	5,62,437
Beads and false pearls	3,47,225
Spirits	2,49,782
Salt	1,96,327
Silk goods	3,32,839

The trade of the year shews an increase in apparel, twist and yarn, and spirits, but considerable decreases in the other articles above enumerated. The quantity and value of Italian salt imported into India decreased by about one-half.

The exports of Indian goods from India to Italy direct are far in excess of the imports thence, and the increase in the trade since the opening of the Canal route is interesting. The following figures shew the export trade since 1869-70, the year previous to the opening of the Canal:

	Rs.
1869-70	8,70,151
1870-71	55,59,209
1871-72	1,12,93,080
1872-73	95,04,006
1873-74	1,31,62,414
1874-75	1,10,96,491
1875-76	1,21,74,593
1876-77	1,40,86,823

The items which tend to increase the trade are cotton (raw), rice, wheat, shell-lac, saltpetre, teel seed, raw silk, and sugar. These, with coffee, indigo, and raw hides, are the principal articles of trade, as will appear from the following figures of 1876-77:

	Rs.
Coffee	1,00,305
Cotton	79,25,062
Wheat	3,08,112
Hides (raw)	13,22,025
Shell-lac	1,00,147
Saltpetre	1,31,884
Teel seed	7,87,204
Silk (raw)	21,58,360
Sugar	4,06,413

The sum of these amounts is about 94 per cent. of the whole of the exports of Indian produce, the three chief articles among them being cotton, silk, and hides.

With reference to the trade in wheat, I would invite the attention of those interested to the following remarks from a report by Her Majesty's Consul at Genoa on the trade of that port for 1876: "One consequence of the high prices was that several parcels of soft "wheat from India were disposed of at advantageous terms, selling higher here than they "would in Marseilles or in London, namely, at 10*s.* 6*d.* per 100lbs. English, cost and freight

"by steamer. One of the most intelligent grain merchants here tells me that this wheat "found ready sale and was much appreciated, and would be yet more so if the producers "would take more care, in preparing it for market, to separate it from the hard wheat, which "detracts greatly from the appearance of the flour when it comes from the mill."

31. Our imports from the United States, as from most other countries, are not large as compared with our exports. The total value of the imports thence and the exports thereto of Indian goods for the last five years was as follows :—

	Imports.	Exports.
	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73	6,24,819	2,02,56,356
1873-74	9,82,948	1,82,06,134
1874-75	19,04,904	2,08,49,903
1875-76	20,14,693	1,77,61,061
1876-77	17,23,703	1,89,23,358

Our principal imports from the United States are grey piece-goods (the absolute importance of these, however, being as yet but small), ice, mineral oil, tobacco, and timber, and our exports thither are indigo, turmeric, cutch, raw hides and skins, dressed skins, raw and manufactured jute, shell-lac, saltpetre, linseed, and (this year) sugar.

The value of the trade in each of these items is shewn below :—

Imports.

	Rs.
Cotton piece goods	2,16,578
Ice	8,68,386
Mineral oil (kerosine)	3,18,898
Wood and timber	1,16,771
Tobacco	84,701

Exports of Indian produce.

	Rs.
Indigo	17,65,058
Turmeric	1,78,196
Cutch and gambier	8,60,007
Hides and skins, raw and dressed	36,23,572
Jute (raw)	37,63,475
Jute goods, chiefly bags	22,08,626
Lac, shell, stick, and dye	9,24,096
Saltpetre	9,63,157
Linseed	40,44,924
Sugar	2,21,044

The five classes of articles named above under imports constituted upwards of 93 per cent. of the whole of the year's imports from the United States, and it is clear that the Americans have got but little to send us with advantage. The ice which is sent to this country is accompanied generally by a certain quantity of kerosine oil, tobacco, and apples, which are usually sold by those who import the ice. The imports of cotton goods hardly seem to increase, and the same may be said of the imports of timber. The other articles are mostly consumed by Europeans, and no large trade in them can be expected. Indeed if the Burman oil wells were carefully and intelligently worked, and if the cultivation and manufacture of Indian tobacco were diligently prosecuted, neither tobacco nor kerosine oil would be required from America.

Amongst the exports the ten articles named form 98 per cent. of the whole, hides, linseed, jute raw and manufactured, and indigo being the most important. The exports to the States of raw jute are large. A large proportion consists of what is called cuttings or butts, being that portion of the fibre which previous to the pressing of the jute in bales is cut off from the root end of the fibre, where it is thicker and coarser than in the rest of the stem. These cuttings are heckled in the States, like flax or hemp, and made into the cloth which covers cotton bales. Formerly the Americans took a large quantity of Indian made cloth for this purpose, but of late years the local manufacture of cloth from cuttings has to a great extent displaced these imports. The jute (not cuttings) sent to America is comparatively small in quantity, but the quality is always of the best. It is used in the manufacture of carpets and other articles of good quality. The export of jute goods, mostly gunny bags, assumed large dimensions for the first time in 1876-77, owing to a demand from San Francisco which left Dundee for the time, giving Calcutta the preference. The exports have fallen off very greatly during the current year, the supply from Dundee having apparently been resumed. The export of sugar in 1876-77 was due to an exceptional cause, the comparative failure of the maple in the Northern States, and it can hardly be expected to continue.

32. Our trade with Austria has, like our trade with Italy, largely developed of late years since the opening of the Suez Canal, but the increase is apparent only in the exports thither from India. The importation of goods from Austria is of small and apparently diminishing importance. The articles sent to us are cotton twist and piece-goods, aniline dyes, and paper: their value is insignificant. The average value of the imports was for the four years previous to 1876-77 Rs. 10,26,214, while in this year it fell to Rs. 8,74,295.

The exports of Indian produce on the other hand amounted in the year to Rs. 1,42,71,508, as compared with an average for the previous four years of Rs. 1,19,17,711. The principal exports are raw cotton, the value of which during the year was about 74 per cent. of the whole exports, and indigo, which during the last three years shews an average annual value of upwards of twenty lakhs of rupees, as compared with Rs. 53,341 in 1872-73 and Rs. 94,524 in the following year. Hides and skins, raw jute, and tobacco, in comparatively small quantities, are also sent to Austria.

33. The value of the imports of sugar from Mauritius fell during the year to less than a third of the sum of 1875-76. It has before been explained in previous Reviews that the imports of sugar from this colony into Bombay to which Presidency only it is brought, is subject to violent fluctuation. The cause of the decline in this year appears to lie in the great demand existing in England and France, raising prices to an extent which made shipments to Bombay unprofitable. Ordinarily, the shippers for Bombay are known in the Mauritius market as eager and active buyers, offering higher prices than shippers for Europe. This year however the failure of the beetroot crop in France appears to have raised prices to such an extent that buyers for Bombay were unable to compete.

Sugar being pretty nearly the only thing brought to India from Mauritius, a decline in that article means a decline in the total value of the imports, which fell from Rs. 75,09,090 in 1875-76 to Rs. 25,33,770 in 1876-77.

There is an entry in the returns of building and engineering materials imported from Mauritius to the value of Rs. 35,926, but this is really stone ballast not imported as merchandise; and though such stone has a certain money value in India for road making in the large ports, it seems to me that no notice ought to be taken of ballast in the returns of merchandise.

Mauritius is one of the few countries with which India carries on a regular trade in the re-export of foreign goods. The value of such exports in the year was Rs. 3,68,192, English piece-goods (re-exported from Bombay) representing Rs. 2,24,315 out of this sum.

Of Indian produce exported, the following articles were the most important:

	Rs.
Gram	5,26,400
Rice	58,80,443
Wheat	3,63,722
Oats	2,08,419
Pulse (dâl)	3,98,872
Oils (vegetable)	2,13,857
Provisions	4,34,583
Saltpetre	1,24,317
Tobacco	1,20,888

The total value of these articles constituted 91 per cent. of the whole exports of Indian produce, which amounted to Rs. 90,90,410. Food-stuffs alone were nearly 81 per cent. of the whole exports. The great bulk of our exports to Mauritius,—food-stuffs, oil, turmeric, provisions, apparel, cotton-goods, tobacco, opium, spices, &c.,—is required for the consumption of the Indian coolies in the colony.

34. Imports from Arabia were in 1875-76 just under twenty-nine lakhs; this year they are Rs. 31,36,599, the result chiefly of an increase in the value of pearls from the Persian Gulf.

The principal articles of import are—

	Rs.
Cotton, raw	1,17,011
Gums and resins	2,18,300
Precious stones and pearls	6,21,500
Fruits, fresh and dried	11,83,897
Salt	2,10,881
Shells and cowries	1,35,426
Salted-fish, and fishmaws and fins	2,07,788

These articles constituted nearly 86 per cent. of the whole imports of the year. The cotton and salt both come from Muscat, the latter being rock salt, which kind alone the Hindus, reckoning it to be ceremonially pure, use in their religious rites. The fruits are to a large extent wet and dry dates.

The value of the re-exports sent to Arabia is comparatively large, having amounted last year to 20½ lakhs against something under 27 lakhs in the previous year. Most of the trade is in English cotton goods from Bombay. The value of the re-exports of English cottons to Arabia was in 1875-76, Rs. 17,79,078 and in 1876-77, Rs. 15,10,676.

Of other re-exports, the most important are Chinese raw silk, Mauritius sugar, and English iron. Piece-goods, however, as the figures shew, form the bulk of the trade.

In Indian produce, the chief place is occupied by rice. Indian twist and piece-goods also seem to be developing, and coffee, pepper, and sugar are of some importance. The trade in all these articles for the last year is given below:

	Rs.
Coffee	1,48,632
Cotton-twist	1,18,777
Cotton piece-goods	4,04,709
Oils	1,29,597
Rice	15,88,418
Spices (chiefly pepper)	2,50,163
Sugar	2,17,249

These articles constituted 83·4 per cent. of the whole exports, rice alone being upwards of 46 per cent. of the whole. The total value of the exports of Indian produce was, in 1875-76, Rs. 48,27,173 and in 1876-77, Rs. 34,24,175. The principal decreases occurred in rice, which fell off by more than seven lakhs, cotton piece-goods, wheat, and tobacco.

The export of coffee to Arabia appears to be a regular trade. I am told that it is sent to Arabia both from India and Ceylon in mat bags to simulate the packing of Arabian coffee, and that some of it is brought back to Bombay for sale as Mocha coffee. Perhaps some is re-exported elsewhere in the same way. It is certain that Indian and Ceylon coffee is quite as good as much of that which is produced in Arabia.

35. A reference to our trade with Arabia would be incomplete without some remarks on the trade with the British possession of Aden, which, though administratively subject to the Government of India, is, for the purposes of the statistics of trade, reckoned a foreign port. The imports from that settlement in 1875-76 and 1876-77 were valued at Rs. 11,73,968 and Rs. 11,60,709, respectively; but these figures do not agree with those rendered by Captain Hunter, Assistant Resident at Aden, who states the value for each year (excluding the exports to Kutch, a foreign Indian State, which is omitted from our returns of the imports from Aden), at Rs. 13,10,018 and Rs. 10,07,936. The discrepancies are not reconcileable, but it may reasonably be assumed that our figures are more likely to be correct, as the largest proportion of the articles imported from Aden is dutiable on arrival in India and the goods are subject to careful examination and valuation at the Custom-houses here, while, Aden being a free port, there is but scanty opportunity of effecting approximately correct valuations there. About six-elevenths of the imports consisted of unmanufactured ivory brought to Bombay from Zanzibar viâ Aden for re-export. Of the rest of the articles spices, gums, and cotton piece-goods are the most important. To Aden we send (of foreign goods) cotton piece-goods worth about ten times the imports thence of those articles, raw silk, metals, hardware and cutlery, woollen piece-goods, and other articles in small quantities; and the exports of Indian produce consist chiefly of cotton twist and piece-goods, rice, silk goods, spices, and sugar. Aden itself is a place which possesses neither producing nor manufacturing capacity, and its whole importance lies in its geographical position, which makes it quite suitable for an entrepôt. Our exports thither for the last five years are as follow :—

	1872-73.	1873-74.	1874-75.	1875-76.	1876-77.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Re-exports	9,75,104	10,73,477	12,05,672	10,35,986	8,78,189
Exports of Indian produce . .	24,51,944	25,92,107	26,33,590	22,89,643	22,10,283
TOTAL . . .	34,27,048	36,65,584	38,39,262	33,25,629	30,88,472

The trade shews a decline which is not compensated for by any increase in imports. The main staple of the imports is ivory, and of this a good deal, as was pointed out last year, now is exported direct to Europe from Aden instead of coming first to Bombay. Of the re-exports the largest part consists of piece-goods, and these are now to an increasing extent brought direct to Aden from Europe instead of coming viâ Bombay. In exports of Indian produce the decrease occurs in rice (of which tolerably large quantities are sent to Aden from Calcutta), and it would appear from Captain Hunter's report that there was an abundant crop of jowári in Yemen, and that this grain was largely brought into the settlement to the displacement of rice. Rice however, this officer says, is rapidly becoming a favourite with the Somális in substitution for jowári. It is satisfactory to see that Indian cottons continue to find a good market in Aden and its neighbourhood. Twist has fallen off a little, but piece-goods shew an increase.

The combined value of twist and piece-goods for the last five years was :—

1873-74	„	13,73,542
1874-75	„	11,66,701
1875-76	„	10,29,352
1876-77	„	12,33,788

The trade with India forms only a small part of the commercial transactions of Aden, which has a considerable intercourse with the United Kingdom, Austria and France, the Eastern Coast of Africa, other ports in Arabia, Persia, and the Straits Settlements.

In the list of articles imported from the interior of Arabia into Aden the item kâât attracts attention. The value of the imports was during the last three years on an average about Rs. 1,03,000. This article is a plant, the Catha edulis, reputed to possess stimulating and intoxicating properties, and therefore much in demand amongst the Arabs, to whom the use of liquor is forbidden by their religion.

36. The only other country with which trade is conducted on an extensive scale is Persia. From this country we receive cotton, drugs and medicines, dyeing materials (chiefly madder), precious stones and pearls, provisions (dried fruits and salted fish), raw silk, and raw wool. The total value of the imports last year was Rs. 36,54,034, of which more than three-fourths were the value of the articles named. Imports of raw cotton and of dried fruits were much larger than in the previous year, and helped to swell the total, which is about 7½ lakhs in excess of that of the previous year.

Exports of foreign merchandise to Persia have fallen off according to the returns, but this is not actually the case. Previous to 1875-76 the figures now recorded under the head of Persia represented the trade with the Ports in the Persian Gulf, including therein the Arabian ports on the western shore and the Turkish port of Bassora. This error makes it impossible to compare the trade of 1875-76 and 1876-77 with any previous year. For these two years the figures were :—

1876-77	„	48,30,072

The bulk of the re-exports consists of English twist and cotton piece-goods, the value of which in 1876-77 was Rs. 35,99,466, or about three-fourths of the whole.

The only other articles of importance are metals and sugar.

The exports of Indian produce were :—

1875-76	Rs.	19,97,951
1876-77	„	20,36,953

The main articles are coffee, indigo, rice, and shawls, and small quantities of Indian piece-goods. Indigo and rice are the most important.

37. The countries which form the subject of the foregoing paragraphs took, as I have said before, about 95 per cent. of the whole trade of India, and it seems unnecessary therefore to enter into details concerning the numerous other countries mentioned in the returns whose trade with us is insignificant. A few brief remarks however may be made to complete this section of the review. Taking the countries in the order in which they appear in the tables, the following facts seem to merit notice.

38. Countries in Europe.—Our exports to Belgium shew a considerable increase in the trade in linseed and rapeseed, to which, with wheat and cotton, the trade of the year was practically confined. Wheat appears for the first time in the returns of the last five years as exported to Belgium.

To Germany the staple export is cotton, which increased largely during the year. A small quantity of rice also goes direct to Germany, but this bears only a very small proportion to that which reaches Germany indirectly, being shipped hence to Channel ports for orders and shewn in our returns as sent to the United Kingdom. To Holland also the chief export is cotton, with a small quantity of linseed. The shipments of cotton fell off, but in the cotton trade with Holland there are often great fluctuations caused by the rates of freights, the state of the English market, &c.

To Malta we sent during the year much larger quantities of rice and wheat, which are almost the only exports, than usual.

The direct trade with Russia, which took a great spring in 1874-75 and 1875-76, a direct trade in the export of cotton to Odessa having been established, fell again in the year of report to a very low level, the natural consequence of course of the prolonged anticipations of war and their ultimate realisation.

The only article sent to Spain in the year was cotton, and that in very small quantities as compared with the previous year.

Gibraltar sends us some wine and takes in exchange a little tobacco and rice. The prospect of a large trade in tobacco was cruelly destroyed by the active interference of Spanish guardacostas with the contraband traders of the Rock. This year the export was less than half what it was in 1875-76.

With the exception of Portugal we had practically no trade with any other European State during the year. To this country we sent some coffee worth about 3½ lakhs of rupees.

39. Countries in Africa.—The Cape of Good Hope takes some rice, to which article the trade is pretty well confined.

Our trade with the Eastern Coast of Africa is relatively important. The total import trade of the year amounted to nearly 25 lakhs of rupees, the largest part of this sum representing the value of ivory and cloves. Re-exports thither amounted to nearly 20½ lakhs, of which over 16¾ lakhs was the value of English piece-goods. Of Indian piece-goods the consumption in Eastern Africa appears to be insignificant as yet compared with that of English goods re-exported from Bombay, but it is certainly increasing. These tracts take from us very little besides our cotton, some food-stuffs, and metals. The total value of native exports was only a little over 8 lakhs of rupees.

One of the principal articles of export to Eygpt is, strange to say, raw cotton, which was sent thither in 1875-76 to the value of Rs. 6,74,608, and in 1876-77 Rs. 8,67,226. It is a very remarkable circumstance if it is true, but I apprehend that the entries are erroneous, the cotton having really been shipped hence to Port Said, for transshipment to some country in Europe.* Indigo, rice, gunny bags, and linseed are sent in tolerably large quantities to Egypt. The bags are a new trade, which may be expected to increase.

With Madagascar, Natal, Réunion, St. Helena, and other countries in Africa, we have hardly any trade, except in rice and wheat to Réunion.

40. America.—Except with South America, whither we have sent rice for the last two years to the average annual value of nearly 17 lakhs of rupees, and the West Indies, which take the same article to the value of about 8 or 9 lakhs, we have no trade worth mentioning

*NOTE.—I have since ascertained that this is actually the case for some portion at least of the shipments, which were intended ultimately for London and Liverpool. In the same way goods are sent to Gibraltar, Malta, and the ports of the English Channel "for orders" as to their ultimate destination.

with any part of the American Continent other than the United States, the trade with which has already been described.

41. In Asia our trade with countries other than those already mentioned is of the smallest account. To Japan we send a little cotton twist (an increasing trade however); to Java some rice, saltpetre, and a few gunny bags; to the Maldives a little rice in exchange for cocoanuts, coir, and cowries; to Mekran and Sonmiani some piece-goods (English and native), receiving thence raw wool, ghee, and salted fish. In 1875-76 a considerable quantity of rapeseed was imported into Sind from this coast, but there was very little in 1876-77. The Collector of Customs at Kurrachee says that native merchants find it more profitable to bring the seed to Kurrachee overland from Lus Beyla on camels instead of sending it, as formerly, on camels from Lus Beyla to Sonmiani, and thence by sea in country craft to Kurrachee. The trade with this coast is practically coasting trade. From Siam we get some timber and tin, and send rice and opium in exchange; from Sumatra we get betelnuts, but we seem to have nothing in particular to send thither. Turkey in Asia sends us a considerable quantity of dried fruit and (during the last two years) some wheat. The whole value of the imports was a little over 13 lakhs, being about 3½ lakhs less than in the previous year. We sent to Asiatic Turkey last year nearly 19 lakhs of foreign goods, of which 15 lakhs represent the value of Manchester cottons, and we also send some Mauritius sugar. The trade returns under the head of Turkey in Asia are imperfect, much of the trade previous to the year 1875-76 having been recorded as trade with the Persian Gulf, and there are no means of comparing statistics except for the last two years. These shew that the re-exports from India have declined, and though the decline may be immediately due to temporary causes, it is probable that the establishment of direct steam communication between Bassora and Aden has created a tendency towards the diversion of the entrepôt trade from Bombay. Of Indian goods the exports are less than the value of re-exports: coffee and indigo are the two articles which comprise the bulk of the trade.

With the rest of the countries in Asia it may be said briefly that we have no trade, except perhaps with Cochin-China. From this country, during the scarcity in Behar three years ago, the Government imported large quantities of rice, and now again to meet the demands of the famished in Madras we have had an import of about 42,000 cwt., but in ordinary seasons India does not require or receive a pound of rice from Saigon.

42. From Australia we receive horses—said to be to a great extent 'screws'—and copper. The horses come to the country in tolerably large numbers, the annual average being 2,377 during the last three years, and the trade seems to have become permanent. The copper is nearly all unwrought. This trade also is steady and apparently permanent. We send to Australia rice, though not in large quantities, and gunny bags. The trade in bags took a great start in 1875-76, and the exports of the year under review maintained the level of the previous year. During the first six months of the present year there has been only a slight diminution which may perhaps change into an increase before the end of the year. There is a large demand for wool-packs in Australia, and Calcutta is competent to meet the demand satisfactorily. Our trade with Australia in tea and coffee also seems capable of development.

43. Trade viâ the Suez Canal.—The value of the trade to and from India which took this route was Rs. 60,24,32,596 as compared with Rs. 52,64,08,566 in the year previous. Imports into India especially manifest a constantly increasing tendency to take this channel.

This ends the record of the trade of India during the year 1876-77 with the various countries of the world.

IMPORT TRADE.

44. Looking at the totals of Indian trade, it will be found that year after year the exports from this country are far in excess of the imports into it. The following table shews the excess of exports over imports for each of the last five years, the figures including all import of merchandise and treasure and exports of foreign goods, Indian goods, and treasure:—

Year.	Imports.	Exports.	Excess of Exports.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73	35,02,96,544	56,51,02,740	21,48,06,196
1873-74	37,42,10,308	56,83,98,572	19,41,88,264
1874-75	42,78,63,088	57,90,49,819	15,11,86,731
1875-76	42,41,33,906	60,17,32,688	17,75,98,782
1876-77	46,80,32,946	64,91,30,418	18,10,97,472
TOTAL	2,04,45,36,792	2,96,34,14,237	91,88,77,445

The average annual excess of exports over imports during these five years has been Rs. 18,37,75,489.

45. The following table shews the progress of the imports for the past five years, under the two heads of merchandise and treasure:—

	Merchandise.	Treasure.
	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73	30,47,30,694	4,55,65,850
1873-74	31,62,84,972	5,79,25,336
1874-75	34,64,52,622	8,14,10,466
1875-76	37,11,26,682	5,30,07,224
1876-77	35,36,71,766	11,43,61,180

Merchandise fell off by Rs. 1,74,54,916, or 4·7 per cent. as compared with 1875-76, but as compared with the average of the transactions of the previous four years there was an increase of Rs. 1,90,23,024, or 5·68 per cent.

The imports of treasure on the other hand were more than double those of the preceding year, having exceeded them by Rs. 6,13,53,956, or 115·74 per cent. The excess over the average of the four previous years amounts to Rs. 5,48,83,961, or 92·27 per cent.

46. The diminution in the imports of merchandise and the great increase in the value of treasure were the natural and direct result, anticipated in last year's review, of the state of exchange between India and England consequent on the depreciation in the price of silver. The same cause influenced the export trade, in which we find a very large increase in the exports of goods and a great flow of gold out of the country, while silver was flowing in. The influx of silver to pay for the increased exports of merchandise and the outward flow of gold helped materially to raise the price of silver in the London market and to restore the rate of exchange to a comparatively high level. During the present year, for the first six months of which the accounts have been published, the imports of merchandise and treasure have both largely increased (the demand for the famine-stricken districts having largely influenced the inflow of silver), and there is also a considerable rise in the value of merchandise exported, while comparatively very much less treasure has left the country than in 1876-77. During the first six months of 1876-77 the imports of gold were only 50½ lakhs of rupees, while the exports were about double that sum (101 lakhs); in the corresponding period of this year the imports of gold have amounted to 88 lakhs and the exports to only 68¼ lakhs. The flow of gold from the country has therefore been stopped and the normal course of the metal, which is to the country, has been resumed. If exchange maintains its present level, or goes higher, the end of the year will see a more rapid re-adjustment of the usual conditions of Indian trade, which are a large excess of exports over imports of merchandise and a large excess of imports over exports of gold and silver, specially manifest in gold, which is generally at a premium in India.

47. Of the total imports of the year (merchandise and treasure) the United Kingdom sent us upwards of 80 per cent., Italy, China, and the Straits being next in importance as shippers of goods and the precious metals to this country. The figures of imports for the year for these countries are:

	Rs.
United Kingdom:
Merchandise	29,75,24,433
Treasure	7,78,59,435
Total	37,53,83,868
Italy:
Merchandise	33,40,092
Treasure	1,03,17,700
Total	1,36,57,792
China:
Merchandise	1,10,98,593
Treasure	1,01,65,009
Total	2,12,63,602
Straits:
Merchandise	93,73,415
Treasure	10,73,554
Total	1,04,46,969

The imports from these four countries are nearly 90 per cent. of the whole of the imports of the year. The imports of treasure from Italy increased enormously, having amounted to 103 lakhs against less than 12 lakhs in the previous year. The imports of treasure from China on the other hand (the metal being mostly gold) fell off materially. From the United Kingdom and the Straits imports of merchandise always very largely exceed the imports of treasure.

48. With the exception of the Eastern Coast of Africa, Arabia, Persia, and Ceylon, the imports of merchandise from nearly all other countries shew a material decrease as compared with the figures of 1875-76. The value of the imports from the United Kingdom, which has 84 per cent. of the whole trade, fell off by about 76½ lakhs of rupees, or 2½ per cent., this decrease accounting for nearly half of the whole decline of the year. In imports from Mauritius there was a decrease of nearly 50 lakhs (all in sugar), and from China of nearly 41 lakhs. The decreases in other countries are not material, nor was there any remarkable increase in any case. The decrease was distributed over every province in India, except British Burma, which imported 217 lakhs worth of goods as compared with 163 lakhs in the year 1875-76. A large proportion of the goods imported into Burma passes up to Independent Burma and thence into the Shan States and Western China. Such goods are charged with an import duty of 1 per cent. ad valorem only. The trade has considerably increased of late years, the value of the goods declared for Upper Burma having been, in:

	Rs.
1871-72	33,21,030
1872-73	43,20,470
1873-74	48,10,990
1874-75	60,65,170
1875-76	49,56,950
1876-77	48,65,871

49. The principal decreases in imports of merchandise occur under the heads of. Apparel, arms and ammunition, works of art, cabinet-ware and furniture, carriages and carts, clocks and watches, corals, cotton twist, and grey and coloured piece-goods, dyeing materials, such as cochineal, fireworks, glass and glassware, gums and resins, hardware and cutlery, ice, musical instruments, lac, leather goods, wines and liqueurs, machinery and millwork, quicksilver, paints and colours, perfumery, provisions, salt, silk, raw and manufactured, sugar, tea, umbrellas, wood, and woollen piece goods.

With few exceptions, the items in this long list of articles, the value in the trade of which shews a decline in the year, consist of luxuries or quasi-luxuries, the consumption of which was necessarily restricted during a year of unfavourable exchange and consequently increased prices. Of the exceptions more particular mention will be made presently.

50. The articles in which an increase in the trade is manifest are: agricultural implements, animals, books, building materials, candles, coal, coffee, cordage and rope, corks, cotton, white cotton piece-goods, drugs and medicines, earthenware and porcelain, linen goods, fruits and vegetables, grain and pulse, ivory, precious stones and pearls (unset), beer and spirits, matches, copper, iron, lead, steel, tin, and zinc, oils, paper, railway plant and rolling-stock, soap, spices (betelnuts and pepper), tobacco, and wax.

51. Apparel.—The value of the imports maintains a high level on the average, a considerable proportion of the imports being millinery of an expensive kind. There are also increasing imports by post, but these hardly yet affect very materially the import through the Custom-houses. We have no accurate record at present however of the imports by post.

The imports decreased by nearly 15 per cent., having fallen from over 61½ lakhs to less than 52½ lakhs. The average annual value of the imports in the four years preceding 1876-77 was Rs. 60,39,739. About three-fifths of the imports come from the United Kingdom, and the largest part of the balance from France and Italy.

52. Books shew a small increase, the value of the imports having risen from Rs. 10,35,983 to nearly 10¾ lakhs. Candles also increased by nearly a lakh of rupees. About half the whole number of candles imported into India is taken either direct or viâ Calcutta to Burma, where they are largely used in the pagodas.

53. Coal.—The imports are as follow for the last five years:

	Tons.	Rs.
1872-73	324,638	49,79,417
1873-74	359,903	74,00,263
1874-75	356,997	68,04,627
1875-76	383,429	66,55,352
1876-77	519,749	93,17,105

A recovery of the market from the dull and depressed condition into which it had fallen in 1875-76, and a larger output of coal in the United Kingdom, induced considerable shipments during the year, which have been continued during the present year, owing to the large quantities required by the greatly increased steam tonnage plying between Calcutta and Madras with rice and other food-grains, and the abnormal traffic on the railway lines in carrying goods into the famine-stricken tracts. Out of the total imports about 350,000 tons were landed in Bombay. Some portion of the increased trade was due, the Commissioner of Customs there says, to speculation caused by anticipations of war and consequent increase in the rates of freight. The Bombay cotton mills will of course always be large consumers of English coal.

54. Cotton, raw.—The short stapled fibre of Asia is imported free of duty, non-Asiatic cotton (such as Egyptian or American) being subject since August 1875, to an import duty of 5 per cent. ad valorem. Of the former kind the import is tolerably large, having averaged over 21,000 cwt. in the four years ending with 1875-76, and nearly 40,000 cwt. in the year 1876-77. The bulk of the imports comes from Persia, most of the remainder being imported from Arabia and the Mekran coast, and almost all is landed in Bombay, where it is used in the mills. The value of the total imports last year was Rs. 8,39,499.

Of non-Asiatic cotton (mostly Egyptian) the imports are quite insignificant, having averaged only about 115 cwt. during the last three years. This cotton would be imported only for the purpose of making the finer fabrics, but the Indian mills as yet confine themselves to the production of coarse twist and piece-goods.

55. Cotton twist and yarn.—The imports for the last five years are as follow:—

	lbs.	Rs.
1872-73	31,689,441	2,62,82,958
1873-74	30,578,815	2,62,89,588
1874-75	37,097,260	3,15,77,795
1875-76	31,927,340	2,79,47,692
1876-77	33,270,208	2,73,35,136

The average price per pound in each of these five years, according to the declarations of importers, was in—

1872-73	13·2	annas
1873-74	13·7	,,
1874-75	13·6	,,
1875-76	14·0	,,
1876-77	13·1	,,

To the end of 1874-75 the values declared were based on the tariff valuations. Since then the actual values have been declared. They shew a material fall in price in 1876-77 as compared with the previous year, and this fall has been accentuated in the current year, the declared values giving, on largely increased quantities, an average price of only 12·5 annas per pound. Cotton twist and piece-goods have had to face a falling market ever since the first apprehensions of the immediate occurrence of famine in November 1876. All goods of this class have been for months difficult of sale except at reduced prices, and even at lower prices the quantities sold have been much below the average. In Bombay English twist has to compete with that made locally, the latter being so much liked by buyers and consumers that sometimes local makes of yarns have sold for higher prices than similar qualities of English yarns. The rise in exchange also for a time caused a decline in the demand for English cotton manufactures. Notwithstanding the state of the market and the destitute condition of large parts of the country, merchants in India kept on sending home large orders, the prompt execution of which in Manchester added to the stocks in a market already overstocked, and of course a heavy fall in prices was the inevitable result.

The accounts of the year shew a decrease in the imports into Madras alone, these having fallen from 10,687,228lb. to 9,698,580lb. in 1876-77, a decrease of nearly a million pounds. In the other provinces the imports of twist exceeded those of 1875-76 considerably. Sind alone has a small decrease to shew, but this province receives hardly any twist direct, its supplies being obtained viâ Bombay.

56. Cotton piece-goods.

Grey piece-goods exhibit a further decrease in 1876-77 following on the decrease recorded in 1875-76. The figures for the two years are as follow:

	Yards.	Rs.
1875-76	856,534,622	10,63,97,122
1876-77	840,605,329	10,12,52,587

The values recorded denote a reduction in the average price per yard as well as in the actual quantity imported.

White piece-goods were imported in larger quantities in 1876-77 than in the preceding year:

	Yards.	Rs.
1875-76	174,290,998	2,68,77,064
1876-77	193,453,866	2,88,75,346

Under this head there is a considerable increase in quantity and value, but the average prices per yard declined, as in the case of grey goods.

Coloured piece-goods fell off, in quantity as well as in value:

	Yards.	Rs.
1875-76	155,208,307	2,83,72,506
1876-77	152,240,661	2,70,98,200

Prices of this class of goods also shewed a decline, as in the case of the other two classes of piece-goods.

The total quantity of all three classes of goods imported in the year amounted to 1,186,299,856 yards as compared with 1,186,033,927 yards in 1875-76, there being a slight, almost imperceptible, increase of 265,929 yards, or 0·022 per cent., an increase which was not warranted by the condition of the trade and of the people, who, as a matter of fact, had far less consuming capacity in 1876-77 than in 1875-76. The consequences of maintaining a high level of imports in the face of a languishing demand without any visible prospect of speedy revival, were seen not only in a general reduction of prices and in the difficulty of disposing of the goods even at lower prices, but also in increased re-exports to foreign countries. These were raised from 51,023,222 yards to 56,340,516 yards in 1876-77. Deducting these re-exports from the imports, the quantities remaining in India at the end of the year 1876-77 stood at 1,129,959,340 yards as compared with 1,135,010,705 yards in 1875-76, being a reduction of 5,051,365 yards, or 0·44 per cent.

The total values fell from the sum of Rs. 16,16,46,692 in 1875-76 to Rs. 15,72,26,133 in 1876-77, being a reduction of Rs. 44,20,559, or 2·75 per cent.

The provincial distribution of the most important heads of the cotton goods trade during the two years was as follows:

Province.		Twist.	Grey piece-goods.	White piece-goods.	Coloured piece-goods.
		lbs.	Yds.
Bengal	1875-76	12,103,884	580,765,587	111,023,292	85,203,594
	1876-77	12,551,349	542,649,327	113,905,228	77,265,303
Bombay	1875-76	7,293,637	215,130,444	53,642,387	54,171,299
	1876-77	8,183,158	237,007,065	58,198,868	53,445,459
Sind	1875-76	22,803	2,605,374	65,916	903,828
	1876-77	9,143	2,302,988	4,747	424,760
Madras	1875-76	10,687,228	51,845,919	4,205,929	10,849,174
	1876-77	9,698,580	49,485,516	4,432,577	13,351,090
British Burma	1875-76	1,819,788	6,187,298	5,353,474	4,080,412
	1876-77	2,827,978	9,160,433	16,912,446	7,754,049

The average of the nett imports during the two years would give, in a population of 241 millions (which is about that of the whole of India), a consumption of less than five yards of piece-goods per head of the population, worth about 12 annas at most. Some deduction must be made from these figures for re-exports by land to countries on the Indian frontier, but what the deduction should be exactly cannot be stated, the statistics being defective. So much can be said however that the deduction must be quite trifling. On the other hand the consumption of Indian-made piece goods, mill-worked and hand-woven, must be taken into account. These statistics are also defective, and so far as the products of the hand-looms working in the rural districts are concerned, it will never be possible to obtain statistics. Probably however to the average consumption of English piece-goods may be added 30 per cent. on account of native-made cloth, the total consumption being between 6½ and 7 yards of cloth, worth (including customs duties and retail profits to traders) to the wearer rather more than one rupee. The total annual consumption might be set down at, say, 1,650 millions of yards, worth about 270 millions of rupees, being at the rate of little less than two annas and eight pie per yard.

I propose to enter more fully into this question of the consumption of piece-goods in a separate report on the Indian cotton trade which is now under preparation.

Apart from twist and piece-goods, the other kinds of cotton goods imported are of no particular importance. The values of the imports are here contrasted for the years 1875-76 and 1876-77:—

	1875-76. Rs.	1876-77. Rs.
Handkerchiefs and shawls in the piece . . .	9,16,754	10,27,067
Other sorts of piece-goods	31,169	40,845
Lace and patent net	4,18,962	3,37,329
Hosiery, pure and mixed	4,57,176	4,65,158
Thread, sewing	9,99,536	6,60,862
Canvas	4,405	4,083
Other sorts	27,427	1,55,714
TOTAL . .	28,55,429	26,91,058

The total value of cotton twist and manufactures imported during the last five years was as follows:—

	Twist.	Manufactures.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73	2,62,82,958	14,60,59,526	17,23,42,484
1873-74	2,62,89,588	15,15,56,660	17,78,46,248
1874-75	3,15,77,795	16,26,35,602	19,42,13,397
1875-76	2,79,47,692	16,45,02,121	19,24,49,813
1876-77	2,73,35,136	15,99,17,191	18,72,52,327
Average of the five years . . .	2,78,86,634	15,69,34,220	18,48,20,854

The imports of twist and manufactures of cotton during the year were 52·94 per cent. of the whole imports of foreign goods into India.

57. The imports of drugs and medicines slightly increased on the whole, those of quinine showing a substantial increase both in quantity and value, though the imports are still absolutely small. At the present moment stocks of quinine in India have been reduced so low that the drug is selling at Rs. 20 the ounce, the ordinary price being from 6 to 8 rupees. The use of the chinchona alkaloid now manufactured in Calcutta from the bark produced on the Government plantations near Darjeeling is spreading, but hardly to the extent justified by its merits and low cost. However, there are good grounds for believing that the qualities of the drug are being more and more appreciated and that before long the demand will overreach the supply.

Dyeing and colouring materials have fallen off very considerably, owing to a large reduction in the quantity of cochineal imported.

58. The import of raw flax is very small. Linen goods are imported to a larger extent, canvas being principally in demand. The total imports of the year were valued at Rs. 9,58,431 against Rs. 8,69,222 in 1875-76. A flax mill, started by an enterprising firm, is now at work in Calcutta on the limited liability principle, but its chief manufactures consist of rope, twine, and canvas from the sunn hemp (Crotalaria juncea). The agents of the mill state that they have succeeded in working up good fibre from the stalks of the flax grown in India, and they propose to continue operations in this direction. If the experiment (for as yet the operations have not passed the experimental stage) should prove successful, a new and important industry will have been created in India. Hitherto the stalks of the Indian flax plant (which is grown only for its seed) have been wasted, the cultivator either throwing them away, burning them, or putting them on his land as manure. Messrs. Macallister and Company, the agents of the mill in question, state that they find a price of from eight to twelve annas the maund a sufficient inducement to the cultivator to bring the stalks to the flax factory in the condition required for manufacture. This is a low price which would not admit of the transit of the stalks to any mill situated a long way from the place of production, but if mills are started in the linseed-producing districts the economic results of the experiments, which so far are stated to have been a complete success, may be of great importance.

59. India possesses many other fibre-producing plants, which are still almost wholly neglected, though actual trial has proved that the fibre obtained by them is of high value. Amongst these the foremost places are occupied by the rhea (Böhmeria nivea), Manila hemp (Musa textilis), and what is commonly called the aloe (Agave Americana). Rhea is certainly the queen of all vegetable fibres, far surpassing them all in lustre, silkiness, strength, and durability. The plant (which is one of the nettle family) flourishes in India wherever it can get good soil and plenty of water. It is indigenous in Assam and parts of Burma and Bengal, and its cultivation in the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab (in the Doon, at Saharunpore, and in the Kangra Valley) has been attended with the completest success. But up to this time the fibre is practically unutilised, the cost of its production by hand labour being prohibitive of its general use. Five years ago the Government of India offered a large reward for the invention of a machine adapted for the treatment of the fibre, but the offer tempted only one competitor whose machine was imperfect. The offer has now been renewed, the conditions attached to it being on this occasion more favourable to competitors, and it is to be hoped that the trials which will be held at Saharunpore in August 1879 will solve the problem and give to industry a machine which will enable textile manufacturers in Europe and elsewhere to provide themselves at reasonable rates with large quantities of this most excellent fibre.

Manila hemp is well known to commerce as a material from which rope of the best quality is made. India imports a good deal of this hemp, both raw and manufactured, although the plant grows in this country, and is abundant in some places. No attempt as yet seems to have been made to develope this product.

The Agave again is a plant which occurs all over India, growing freely in most places with very little attention. The fibre produced from this plant and from an allied species (Fourcroya gigantea) also common in India, is well known to possess most useful qualities, but nothing has been done to introduce it into commerce. Recently the Government of India drew attention in a circular addressed to local Governments to both the Agave and the Musa textilis, and it is to be hoped that the subject may not be allowed to drop. In other countries the value of the Agave is not neglected. For instance, in a recent report addressed by the Italian Consul in the island of Mauritius to his Government, that functionary writes:

"Les feuilles de cette belle plante, qui croit chez nous sans soins et sans culture spéciale, fournissent des fibres très estimées dans l'industrie et la marine, qui les emploient sous différentes formes et principalement comme cordages, à cause de leur force et de leur légèreté. Ces avantages reconnus et publiés par des autorités compétentes des marines de guerre et de commerce d'Angleterre et de France, out donné à l'extraction de ces filaments une telle extension que déjà sa culture se fait sur une grande échelle et que des usines spéciales fonctionnent avec succès et marchent sensiblement au progrès et au développement."

Out of the long list of Indian fibrous plants, not more than half a dozen,—such as Crotalaria juncea, Hibiscus cannabinus, the cocoanut-palm—may be said to be commercially known. The others are used to a small extent locally or are neglected altogether.

60. The importation of glass and glassware has fallen considerably below the level of the previous year, the value of the imports being only a little over 28 lakhs of rupees against nearly 35 lakhs. The reduction is spread over most heads of this item, but is specially manifest in beads and false pearls, and what is called "other ware" in the returns, including lamps of all kinds, table services, flower-holders, and such like decorative articles. It is not probable that the glass manufactory started in the Bombay Presidency, of which I wrote in the review of the trade of 1875-76, has as yet had any effect on the import trade. I have no particulars however of the working of this new industry in Bombay. From recent notices in the public journals it appears that the manager of a brewery in the Punjab has commenced the manufacture of bottles at Rawal Pindi under competent European supervision. The Punjab is well adapted to the successful manufacture of soap and glass, the materials for which abound in the Province.

61. The returns of the imports of grain and pulse have been much affected by the condition of the country. In the four years ending 1875-76 the average annual value of the imports was under a lakh and a half, and this average was swelled by an unusually large import in 1874-75, the year of the drought in Behar. In 1876-77 the imports were valued at Rs. 13,13,700, representing a quantity of 282,000 cwt., the greatest part of which was rice. The figures for the years previous to 1876-77 do not include the imports on account of Government, which were very large in the two years 1873-74 and 1874-75, having been valued at Rs. 19,85,889 and Rs. 31,88,692 respectively. In those years private trade in the import of rice was employed mostly on account of the Government and very little came to the country at the risk of private speculators. In 1876-77 none of the grain imported was on account of Government, and the activity of private trade which was commenced in 1876-77 has continued in the current year, the imports for the first six months of the year being 518,235 cwt., valued at Rs. 24,81,389. Enormous quantities of food-grains have also been thrown into the distressed districts from the ports of Bengal and Burma, but these will be noticed in detail in the section allotted to the coasting trade. Of the total quantity imported in 1876-77, 152,630 cwts. were landed at Madras ports and 106,987 cwt. in the Bombay Presidency. Madras took almost all the rice imported, most of which came from Ceylon and Saigon, and Bombay most of the wheat and other grains, of which great part came from Turkey in Asia.

62. Imports of hardware and cutlery (including plated ware) fell from 47½ lakhs of rupees to 44 lakhs, a reduction of 3½ lakhs. Ice also fell off, the quantity being 243,341 cwt. against 261,400 cwt., much to the discomfort of the people of Bombay, who were sufferers by the failure of the Tudor Company to keep up a sufficient supply.

63. Ivory (unmanufactured) again shews a considerable increase in value attended by a decrease in the quantity imported. The trade for the last five years has been as follows:

	lbs.	Rs.
1872-73	686,185	14,39,224
1873-74	855,188	18,53,499
1874-75	567,214	12,11,517
1875-76	568,588	22,92,471
1876-77	546,797	24,15,514

The causes of this condition of the trade have been sufficiently noticed in previous reviews: they still exist.

64. In jewellery an increase is recorded, the value of the imports having risen from Rs. 17,68,309 to Rs. 19,77,663. The increase is due to a larger import than in the three previous years of pearls from the Persian Gulf, where the fisheries during the year were successful. Jewellery (other than pearls) and plate both declined in value.

65. In liquors on the whole there was a considerable decrease in both quantity and value which for the last five years were:

	Gallons.	Rs.
1872-73	2,852,936	1,42,92,437
1873-74	2,589,212	1,30,27,090
1874-75	2,721,606	1,38,02,864
1875-76	2,438,493	1,39,21,274
1876-77	2,307,876	1,30,35,920

Under the head of Ale, beer, and porter a very small increase appears, the imports having risen from 1,143,157 gallons to 1,176,922 gallons, but these quantities are far below those of the three years preceding 1875-76, when they averaged 1,484,513 gallons annually. There can be no doubt that the excellent beer brewed in the Himalayas has very largely displaced English beer in the hill stations and in many of the stations of the plains within easy reach of the hills. Hill beer can be sold at a profit as low down as Allahabad at rates which are lower than those at which English imported beer can be laid down in those stations, but it is now threatened with competition by the inventors of an article called concentrated beer, who have established a place of business at Allahabad. The article is in fact beer which in England is subjected to somewhat less fermentation than beer intended for immediate consumption. It is condensed, most of the water being given off in evaporation, and is then, in a semi-solid state, packed in tins for export. On reaching this country water is added to it and the incomplete fermentation is completed, when it is fit to drink, being, it is said, in every respect as good and as palatable as beer which goes through the ordinary processes. The inventors claim that they save in freight and incur no risk of breakage of bottles in transit, and that the consumer is always sure of having his beer fresh and good, and these are substantial advantages in favour of the new beer.

Spirits shew a great decrease in quantity:

	Gallons.	Rs.
1872-73	723,609	55,38,838
1873-74	608,824	48,85,971
1874-75	674,987	55,38,329
1875-76	704,874	60,34,761
1876-77	654,527	62,21,840

But values have risen considerably, the average price shewing an increase of about one rupee a gallon, a result which is partly attributable to increased prices charged by importers to recoup their losses on exchange and partly to the increased rates of duty which in August 1875 were raised by one rupee a gallon.

Wines and liqueurs have fallen both in quantity and value:

	Gallons.	Rs.
1872-73	592,831	50,92,850
1873-74	545,043	47,45,604
1874-75	564,921	47,46,951
1875-76	575,396	51,60,694
1876-77	464,242	40,69,755

The recorded values indicated a slight decline in price, which may be owing to the increased consumption of light clarets in supersession of the more expensive sparkling wines and wines of Spain and Portugal.

66. Machinery and millwork.—A decline in the value of these items occurred during the year, following on the considerable importations of the previous year. The values for the five years are—

	Rs.
1872-73	51,73,157
1873-74	1,00,23,470
1874-75	1,18,59,433
1875-76	1,39,16,668
1876-77	88,23,734

This very large decrease of nearly 51 lakhs of rupees is not altogether an actual decrease, for in Bengal the greatest part of the decrease of 23 lakhs of rupees recorded in that province is attributable to an error in classification, steam-engines for railways having been in 1875-76 classed under this head. In Bombay the decrease, which amounts to about 26 lakhs, is assigned by the local authorities to a decline in local requirements. This no doubt is the case; but in Bombay also an increase in railway plant of about 10 lakhs of rupees is noticed, part of which may be the result of a mistake similar to that which was made in the Calcutta Custom-house. The actual decrease in the imports of machinery may perhaps be taken to be not more than 20 or 21 lakhs of rupees. In the first half of the current year there is a further decrease of more than six lakhs of rupees.

67. The value of our imports of manures is represented by the miserable sum of Rs. 29,479, and on the other hand we exported nearly 18,000 tons worth Rs. 5,32,621, besides oil cake (not separately specified in the returns) to the value of about nine lakhs of rupees. These figures have a regrettable significance to those who are acquainted with the agricultural condition of India. I have elsewhere (paragraph 28) made some remarks on this subject.

68. The import of metals rose from 124,404 tons (2,488,094 cwt.), valued at Rs. 3,23,34,691, in 1875-76, to 140,914 tons (2,818,281 cwt.), valued at Rs. 3,56,14,078, in 1876-77. The metal most largely brought to India is iron, chiefly wrought, as in bars, angles, bolts and rods, sheets and plates, hoops, and galvanised iron. In other forms the imports of iron are comparatively of small importance. The total imports of all kinds in the two years were:

		Rs.
1875-76	cwt. 2,023,846 (tons 101,192)	1,42,45,978
1876-77	cwt. 2,251,193 (tons 112,559)	1,52,84,057

The quantity of iron imported during the year represented nearly 80 per cent. of the whole quantity of metals imported into the country. In 1875-76 the proportion was 81·34 per cent. The imports ordinarily do not represent less than 80 per cent. of all the metals received in India from foreign countries. England supplies us with about 99 per cent. of the whole quantity of iron imported.

The other most important metals received are copper, zinc, and steel, the trade in which for the two years 1875-76 and 1876-77 was as follows:

		1875-76.	1876-77.
Copper	cwt.	236,016	272,353
	Rs.	1,20,75,001	1,39,81,017
Zinc	cwt.	59,118	96,593
	Rs.	8,26,513	14,37,198
Steel	cwt.	82,166	108,642
	Rs.	8,89,961	11,22,445

Copper is received mostly in the form of cakes, tiles, and ingots, yellow metal for the sheathing of ships' bottoms, and sheets. Zinc is also received mostly in unmanufactured form. These metals are largely employed in the country in conjunction with tin (the imports of which in the two years were 36,159 cwt. and 37,296 cwt. respectively) in the manufacture of brass and bronze.

Copper, zinc, and steel are received almost exclusively from the United Kingdom, while most of the tin is imported from the Straits.

Of other metals the imports are relatively of small importance.

69. The imports of Paper shew an increase in value of about 1¼ lakhs, having risen from Rs. 27,01,269 to Rs. 28,25,308, but they are still below the level of the two years previous to 1875-76.

70. Provisions decreased very much, especially in Bengal, the decrease occurring chiefly under the heading "Other sorts," in which are included what are called oilmans' stores, and French and English tinned provisions. These are a large import into this country, the trade being dependent on European consumption, which was certainly affected, as in various other articles, by the unfavourable state of exchange and the rise in prices which ensued thereon.

71. Railway plant and rolling stock increased from Rs. 59,97,696 to Rs. 69,19,076, the increase falling under the head of materials for construction. It would seem that some portion of the increase is only nominal, some items which should have been included under this head having in 1875-76 been included under Machinery.

72. Salt.—Imports fell from 365,251 tons, valued at Rs. 60,09,343, to 298,776 tons, valued at Rs. 43,08,901. The average price, according to the declared values, fell from Rs. 16·45 per ton to Rs. 14·42 per ton, a decline of more than two rupees the ton. Bengal takes most of the salt imported into India, the quantity landed in this province during the year having been 270,908 tons. Of the remainder 27,675 tons were taken by Burma, a good deal finding its way up the Irrawaddy into the territory of the King of Ava. The imports into Bengal in 1875-76 were unusually large and much in excess of the demand. Large quantities were bonded and remained unsold during the year. The quantities remaining in bond at the end of each of the last five years were as follow:

	Tons.
1872-73	94,873
1873-74	101,390
1874-75	50,888
1875-76	139,682
1876-77	141,719

The heavy shipments of 1875-76 were induced to a great extent by a fall in prices in England, but the decline having been followed by a decline here, shipments fell off very largely.

73. The imports of Silk, both raw and manufactured, fell off very materially, the values being:

	1875-76.	1876-77.
	Rs.	Rs.
Silk, raw	69,48,885	45,18,954
„ manufactured . . .	70,88,661	58,47,880

74. The imports of Soap are not large, but it is surprising that this article should continue to figure in our list of imports at all. The imports for the last two years have been:

	Cwt.	Rs.
1875-76	11,517	2,43,471
1876-77	17,047	3,32,791

For the same period our exports of soap made in India have been:

Cwt.	Rs.
20,999	2,10,126
34,950	3,72,059

The kinds imported are mostly brown and yellow soap, and the cheaper kinds of fancy perfumed soaps. The kind exported is a rough, unsavoury article, made into unsightly lumps, unfit for use on the person except by the poorest classes. It is extensively used in the country for dogs and horses, for the washing of clothes, and by the poorer classes of the native population. Cheap as it is, it is comparatively, having reference to the quality, dearer than the better soaps imported, and will remain so as long as the manufacture is carried on in the rough, careless fashion practised by the natives. Every native who can afford to buy European soap prefers it to the country made article, and a considerable section of the urban population everywhere mightily affects the gaily coloured, marbled soaps, of cheap qualities, which are manufactured in France. Another section, which forms the mass of the population, uses no soap at all, resorting for detergent purposes to the nut of the Sapindus emarginatus, impure carbonate of soda, and other substitutes. Now, very many of these would buy soap and use it, to the profit of the manufacturer and to their own personal benefit, if it could be placed within their reach, and it is astonishing that Europeans have not yet turned their attention to the subject. The country contains all the materials required—tallow, oil, potash, soda—and soap of the very best quality could be manufactured almost anywhere in the North-West or the Punjab without difficulty and with a prospect of great pecuniary profit. At present we confine ourselves to the export to France and England of enormous quantities of seed, the oil extracted from which is made into soap in those countries for export to all the world, India included; but we never seem to think that India contains all the elements required for the manufacture of excellent soap (always excepting science and capital) and an enormous population which, poor as the mass of it may be, would be able to consume as much as could be produced. The exports of soap to the neighbouring countries too might be multiplied fiftyfold, if a better article than is now exported could be supplied, as it undoubtedly could, at about the same price. A soap-boiling establishment on a large scale, managed in the skilful way in which the soap-boiling establishments of Marseilles are managed, making mostly the hard economic soaps, and turning out the article with a neat appearance and at a low price, would, I venture to think, realise good profits to the owners, and vastly improve the sanitary condition of the country.

75. Imports of sugar are subject to great fluctuation, as the following figures for the five years shew:

	Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	342,450	44,01,461
1873-74	435,570	55,89,781
1874-75	395,715	51,65,636
1875-76	613,151	89,59,272
1876-77	258,105	40,35,563

The cause of the decline in 1876-77 is attributable to the great demand in Europe for sugar, raising prices to a level which diverted supplies of Mauritius sugar from Bombay (which is the principal importer) to Europe. Prices of imported sugar increased by one rupee the hundredweight. The wants of Bombay were met by largely increased supplies during the year from Bengal, which also exported sugar to Europe in much larger quantities than usual and at very much higher prices. The increase in the exports of sugar and the decrease in the imports have continued during the first half of the present year on a greater scale than even in 1876-77.

76. The value of woollen goods fell from Rs. 86,97,603 in 1875-76 to Rs. 81,16,521, the decrease occurring under the heads of piece-goods and shawls, the former comprising the bulk of the imports. The average value of the imports for each of the three years preceding 1875-76 was Rs. 64,86,754. Notwithstanding the decrease therefore the imports maintained a high level as compared with previous years.

77. The respective proportions for the five years ending 1876-77 of free goods and dutiable goods imported are as follow:

Year.	Free Goods.		Dutiable Goods.
	Value.	Proportion.	Value.	Proportion.
	Rs.	Per cent.	Rs.	Per cent.
1872-73 ...	2,24,84,945	7·38	28,22,45,749	92·62
1873-74 ...	2,93,56,052	9·28	28,69,28,920	90·72
1874-75 ...	3,16,59,245	9·13	31,47,93,117	90·86
1875-76 ...	3,54,79,454	9·56	33,56,47,228	90·44
1876-77 ...	3,46,49,083	9·79	31,90,22,683	90·21

78. Manufactured articles represented about 90 per cent. of the imports, as compared with 95 per cent. in the year 1875-76.

RE-EXPORT TRADE.

79. The total value of the articles of foreign origin imported into India and thence exported is very small when compared with either the imports or with the exports of Indian produce. The values for the last five years have been:

	Rs.
1872-73	1,78,71,117
1873-74	1,84,63,586
1874-75	1,81,11,696
1875-76	1,83,31,608
1876-77	2,03,15,627

The re-export trade of the year was 5·7 per cent. of the total imports of foreign goods, as compared with 4·9 per cent. in 1875-76.

The principal increases were in cotton twist and manufactures, which were more than half of the whole exports, apparel, ivory, metals, and provisions.

The conditions of this trade have been sufficiently commented on in previous reviews and need no further comment at present.

EXPORTS OF INDIAN PRODUCE AND MANUFACTURES.

80. The total value of the exports for the last five years was:

	Rs.
1872-73	53,44,91,833
1873-74	53,11,44,275
1874-75	54,50,10,909
1875-76	56,22,49,638
1876-77	58,93,88,993

The results of the year exceeded those of 1875-76 by 4·82 per cent., and the average of the four years by 8·49 per cent.

The principal increases occur under indigo, cotton twist and manufactures, cutch and gambier, grain and pulse (chiefly rice and wheat), hides and skins, jute manufactures, opium, saltpetre, raw silk, sugar, and tea.

On the other hand many important staples declined, among them being coffee, cotton, raw jute, lac, seeds, and raw wool. The decline, however, was not material, except in the cases of cotton and jute, both of which articles appear to have an unpromising future. Fortunately, the loss of custom for such articles as these is more than made up by the creation of new staples, such as wheat, and the increased demand for the local manufactures of cotton and jute.

81. The quantity of coffee exported reached the lowest point attained during the past five years, having fallen to 302,489 cwt., compared with 371,986 cwt. in the previous year. The figures of quantity and value for the five years are:

	Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	370,203	1,12,85,488
1873-74	364,420	1,49,14,109
1874-75	311,831	1,30,53,346
1875-76	371,986	1,62,70,267
1876-77	302,489	1,34,58,217

The crop is said to have been greatly affected by the drought in Southern India, which is the coffee region of India. The largest part of our coffee is taken by England and France, and in the latter country an excessively heavy duty undoubtedly operates to restrict consumption.

82. Coir, which is chiefly exported from this country in the manufactured form (yarn and mats), increased materially, the exports having risen from 111,110 cwt., valued at Rs. 10,09,401, to 176,146 cwt., valued at Rs. 18,98,845.

83. Cotton, raw.—The exports of this article have again declined in quantity and value. The trade has fallen off very much of late years, and no revival can be hoped for while the United States produce such crops as are now being placed on the market, and while prices maintain their present low range in Liverpool. It often happens that prices in Bombay are actually higher than current prices in Liverpool. The statistics of the exports for the last five years are as follow:

	Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	4,412,629	14,02,21,082
1873-74	4,499,698	13,21,22,409
1874-75	5,600,086	15,25,73,416
1875-76	5,009,788	13,27,89,635
1876-77	4,557,914	11,74,61,836

There has been a constant decline in the price of Indian cotton during these years.

	Rs.
In 1872-73 the average price was	31·7	per cwt.
„ 1873-74 „ „	29·3	„
„ 1874-75 „ „	27·2	„
„ 1875-76 „ „	26·5	„
„ 1876-77 „ „	25·7	„

In the first six months of the current year the average price has risen to Rs. 26·7 per cwt., but it is doubtful whether this rise will be maintained to the end of the year, having regard to the state of the Liverpool cotton market, the depressed condition of the Manchester trade and the reports from the United States of a crop which is 97 per cent. of a full crop. While the demand for cotton for export has fallen off so materially, the local demand steadily increases, the Bombay mills being active and regular purchasers at good prices and their competition tending to keep up prices of cotton in Bombay.

Our exports to the chief foreign countries which take Indian cotton, for the last two years, were as follow :

	1875-76. Cwt.	1876-77. Cwt.
To United Kingdom	2,964,913	2,605,891
„ France	587,783	735,241
„ Austria	340,029	401,736
„ Italy	249,486	301,546
„ China	465,399	300,762
„ Germany	37,712	56,230
„ Holland	49,792	47,549
„ Russia	188,123	28,094

To these countries upwards of 98 per cent. of the whole exports were sent during the year.

84. Cotton twist and manufactures.—The exports of Indian twist and piece-goods continue to make satisfactory progress. The exports of twist during the past five years have been :

	lbs.	Rs.
1872-73	1,812,695	9,74,921
1873-74	2,454,852	12,83,860
1874-75	2,834,725	14,75,624
1875-76	6,228,511	26,69,514
1876-77	7,926,710	36,73,028

The exports of manufactures for the same period are as follow :

	Rs.
1872-73	31,54,596
1873-74	39,42,438
1874-75	36,48,118
1875-76	39,64,722
1876-77	44,50,794

The first six months of the current year shew a further very large increase in the export of cotton goods, the increase being especially manifest in twist. During this period the quantity of twist exported was 7,836,304lbs., being nearly as much as was exported in the whole of the previous year. The value of all kinds of cotton goods exported (including twist) was Rs. 58,38,222 in the six months ending September 1877. The manufactures exported consist chiefly of grey and coloured piece-goods, the coloured goods being to a great extent of hand manufacture, in which and in the dyeing of the cloths there is a large industry in the Madras Presidency.

85. The statistics of the cotton mills of India, so far as they are available, record an increase in the number of mills and spindles at work during the year, as compared with the previous year.

Province.	At work last year.			Now at work.
	Number of mills.	Number of looms.	Number of spindles.	Number of mills.	Number of looms.	Number of spindles.
Bombay	37	8,390	931,144	40	8,920	1,025,036
Bengal	4	200	104,546	4	200	104,546
Madras	3	40	26,800	2	...	31,472
North-Western Provinces	2	285	27,350	2	291	27,880
Central India	1	224	10,272	1	224	10,272
Central Provinces	...	...	...	1	550	30,000
Hyderabad	...	...	...	1	200	15,000
Total	47	9,139	1,100,112	51	10,385	1,244,206

The return is not quite complete, no information later than that which was published last year having as yet been received from Bengal, but it is not probable that any material increase has been made in this province. The 51 mills now at work in India may be said to employ about 10,400 looms and 1,245,000 spindles.

86. Drugs and medicines declined in value, but the exports are always limited. The value of the export of chinchona bark is recorded at Rs. 585 only, this sum representing private trade. Our returns of the exports however I have ascertained to be inaccurate. On comparing them with the returns of the Board of Trade, which exhibit an import of chinchona bark into England from India in 1876 of 1,415 cwt. worth £22,682, I made enquiry of the Collector of Customs at Madras regarding the causes of the discrepancy, and from his reply it appears that his returns actually shew an export in 1876-77 of 1,425 cwt., valued at Rs. 1,51,847. These returns are transmitted to the Board of Revenue at Madras, where they are used in the preparation of a general return for the Presidency, this being transmitted to this office. In this provincial entry the particulars given to me by the Collector do not appear, and it would seem that owing to some error in the Board's office the figures for chinchona bark were grouped undistinguished under the head of Drugs and medicines, "other sorts."

87. Indigo.—The exports amounted to only 100,384 cwt. as compared with 110,392 cwt., but the quality of the crop was good, and the prices realised were higher than in 1875-76, the value being Rs. 2,96,27,855 as compared with Rs. 2,87,50,625.

The countries which took most of our indigo during the year were the United Kingdom, France, Austria, Egypt, the United States, Persia, Turkey in Asia, and Italy. Exports to Russia fell to 59 cwt. compared with 1,016 cwt. in 1875-76.

The exports from Madras increased from 22,557 cwt. to 27,869 cwt., while from Bengal they fell to 69,379 cwt. from 84,228 cwt. in 1875-76.

It appears that the planters of Bengal have made up their minds to introduce material and moral reform into their proceedings, moral reform (under pressure from the Government of Bengal) as regards their connection with the cultivators, and material reform as regards the preparation of the dye. A patent has been taken out for a process which is now under trial at one or more factories, the inventor claiming that its employment will increase the quantity and improve the quality of indigo obtained from the plant. Whether this process should prove successful or not, it is certainly most desirable that indigo planters should turn their attention to improved processes of manufacture. At present it seems to be quite a chance whether the yield of the year will be of good, medium, or inferior quality, and no planter can guarantee that his outturn year after year will be of a level, unvarying quality. Moreover, it is quite certain that there is great waste in manufacture, the colouring material yielded by the plant being by no means fully utilised.

88. The trade in safflower revived to some extent in 1876-77, but the trade still remains, what it has been for some years past, of no importance.

89. The export of myrabolams also increased, in quantity from 286,350 cwt. to 361,217 cwt., and in value from Rs. 10,64,013 to Rs. 13,58,225.

90. Turmeric was exported to the value of 10½ lakhs of rupees, the quantity being 123,824 cwt. This article has hitherto been recorded in the returns under the heading "spices," but it is more appropriately classed as a dyeing material. It is not really a spice but a condiment, and for this purpose it is very largely used in India; but it is also extensively employed as a dye, and almost all of that which is exported from this country is used as a dye. It is mostly exported from Bengal to England, France, and the United States.

Other kinds of dyestuffs are of no importance.

91. Grain and pulse.—The year 1876-77 was one of remarkable activity in the movement of food-grains, and the present year is still more so. Besides the internal movement occasioned by the demands of the famine-stricken districts of Southern India and the Deccan, there was a great increase in the exports to foreign countries, caused by a striking development in the trade in wheat. The total quantity of grain exported rose from 23,561,500 cwt., valued at Rs. 6,41,58,310, in 1875-76, to 26,210,385 cwt., valued at Rs. 7,98,67,719, in 1876-77.

Gram, paddy (rice in the husk), oats, and pulse, all shared in the increase; but these are unimportant compared with rice (husked) and wheat, which form the staple of the export trade in food stuffs. The trade in these two articles for the last five years is shewn below :—

Rice.

	Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	22,973,797	5,70,14,388
1873-74	19,805,184	5,46,54,698
1874-75	16,940,642	4,67,26,048
1875-76	20,090,348	5,24,13,844
1876-77	19,548,741	5,74,25,397

	Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	394,010	16,76,900
1873-74	1,755,954	82,76,064
1874-75	1,069,076	49,04,352
1875-76	2,498,185	90,10,255
1876-77	5,583,336	1,95,63,325

As a natural consequence of the failure of the crops, enormous quantities of rice were poured into Madras during the year 1876-77, and in the current year from Bengal and Burma, but especially from Bengal. Other grains also poured in freely from Northern India through Calcutta, or by railway, but the proportion borne by them to the supplies of rice was small. This great drain on the resources of Bengal and Burma naturally raised prices and diminished the quantities available for export. Hence we find that comparing the exports of rice in 1876-77 with those of 1875-76, the quantity was reduced by 541,607 cwt., or 2·6 per cent., while the value was increased by Rs. 50,11,553, or 9·5 per cent., being an average price of Rs. 2·9 per cwt. in 1876-77, as compared with Rs. 2·6 per cwt. in 1875-76. The increase of price and the diminution of exports are even more marked in the present year 1877-78 than in that which has passed. The exports for the first six months of the year are about 6½ million cwt., compared with more than 7¾ millions in the first half of 1876-77, while the value is Rs. 2,36,47,401, against Rs. 2,09,68,702. The average price this year has been Rs. 3·7 per cwt. Prices in this period have in fact reached an extreme point, rising in Burma to an unprecedented level, so high in fact as in many places to cause acute distress to the poorer classes. Prices have recently fallen, however, and even with greater rapidity than they rose, deranging the combinations of speculators in Calcutta and causing heavy losses to firms under contract for the chartering of vessels to Madras and for the purchase of rice. It is probable that the complete record of the present year will show an average price not exceeding that of 1876-77, if indeed it does not fall below it, while the quantity of the exports will be considerably increased.

The countries which took most of our rice during the year were England, Ceylon, Mauritius, the Straits, South America, Egypt, Arabia, Malta, and the West Indies, these countries sharing between them more than 95 per cent. of the whole trade.

Wheat has played a subordinate part in the relief of the famine, but it has been the subject of most eager and active speculation in export to Europe. Both quantities and values of the exports of 1876-77 were considerably more than double those of the previous year, and the first six months of the current year already record an export almost equal in quantity to that of the whole twelve months of 1876-77 and much in excess of it in value. Wheat in fact in the current year is hardly less important than rice, and if the trade were to continue for the rest of the year with the activity which characterised it in the commencement, rice would for the first time on record occupy the second place in the list of our exports of food-grains. The trade however has slackened with a fall of prices in England, caused by a good harvest and by the receipt of very large supplies from the United States and from Russia, this latter country having lately pushed on exports as much as possible before the close of the Baltic ports by ice in order to obtain the money required for expenditure caused by the war. The anticipated scarcity in the North-West and the Punjab also raised prices in September and October to a point which made shipments unprofitable, and the decline in the exports has been great. Though considerable quantities will still be exported before the end of the year, these will probably not be equal in magnitude to the trade of the first half of the year.

Of Indian wheat nearly four-fifths was taken by England; France, Belgium, Italy, Malta, Mauritius, and the Straits taking the greater part of the remainder.

The proportion in which the exports were shared by each of the provinces during the last three years was as follows:—

	Bengal.	Bombay.	Sind.	Madras.	Burma.
	Cwt.	Cwt.	Cwt.	Cwt.	Cwt.
1874-75 .	280,530 (26·24 per cent.)	633,681 (59·27 per cent.)	143,144 (13·39 per cent.)	9,186 (·086 per cent.)	2,535 (0·24 per cent.)
1875-76 .	1,330,951 (53·28 per cent.)	837,869 (33·54 per cent.)	306,063 (12·25 per cent.)	7,492 (·030 per cent.)	15,810 (0·63 per cent.)
1876-77 .	3,887,646 (69·63 per cent.)	1,234,094 (22·10 per cent.)	455,240 (8·16 per cent.)	4,469 (·008 per cent.)	1,887 (0·03 per cent.)

India has a prominent place now among the countries which supply England with wheat. The imports of wheat, wheatmeal, and flour for 1876 according to the returns of the Board of Trade were:—

	Cwt.
From the United States	21,643,333
„ Russia	8,885,556
„ British India	3,287,236
„ Germany	3,254,967

and smaller quantities from other countries. England consumes extremely large quantities of maize, nearly 40 million cwt. (worth more than 12¾ millions sterling) having been imported in 1876. Most of it comes from the United States and from Turkey in Europe, and the trade is an increasing one. There appears to be no good reason why India should not compete in the supply of maize as it has done in wheat. The plant is cultivated very extensively in many parts of the country, and the grain is an article of ordinary consumption with the people, especially those of Northern India. The thing is certainly well worth a trial.

92. The exports of Cutch and Gambier shew a large increase from 192,683 cwt. to 264,933 cwt., the value being Rs. 25,07,515, as compared with Rs. 16,64,545. The bulk of the exports is taken by the United Kingdom and the United States.

93. Hides and Skins.—In the review of trade for 1875-76, I pointed to the increase in the export of tanned hides and skins which had followed the remission of the export duty on them. That increase still continues, as will be apparent from the following figures :—

	Tanned Hides.		Tanned Skins.
	Number.	Rupees.	Number.	Rupees.
1872-73 . .	678,118	17,07,005	10,543,064	52,72,206

1874-75 . .	577,010	14,64,880	7,176,219	35,88,238

1876-77 . .	1,461,140	50,41,860	10,826,677	98,83,221

The exports of raw hides and skins on the other hand again diminished in quantity and value :

	Raw Hides.		Raw Skins.
	Number.	Rupees.	Number.	Rupees.
1872-73 . .	8,779,054	2,03,79,660	2,989,379	18,55,284

1874-75 . .	7,117,889	1,98,19,816	3,291,733	19,04,733
1875-76 . .	6,278,297	1,60,75,095	2,610,445	14,56,789
1876-77 . .	5,191,762	1,34,66,437	2,313,298	15,95,317

It seems perfectly clear that the effect of the duty was to restrict trade in tanned hides, and that with the removal of the tax an industry for which India has ample and peculiar capacity is able to attain rapidly a state of prosperous development.

94. The trade in horns rises or falls with the trade in hides and skins. Accordingly the results of the year shew an increase in the exports, which rose from 54,755 cwt. to 71,894 cwt., the value increasing from Rs. 8,06,652 to Rs. 12,80,051.

95. Jute, raw.—The exports of this article have fallen year after year since 1872-73. The exports for the last six years are as follow :—

	Cwt.	Rs.	Average price.
1871-72	6,133,813	4,11,73,081	Rs. 6·7 per cwt.

The causes of the decline in the export of raw jute were fully stated in the review of the trade of 1875-76, and it seems unnecessary to repeat what was then said. There is little new to be added to the remarks then made. Prices in Calcutta shew a recovery during the last six months on the low rates which had previously for some time obtained, but this recovery appears to have been mainly caused by the demand for jute in the Calcutta mills, which during the continuance of the famine found plenty of work in the making of rice bags. Raw jute, like raw cotton, appears to have but a poor prospect before it, so far as regards the foreign market, but the falling off of the demand from other countries is to some extent compensated by the demand in Calcutta for local manufacture. The exports of jute to the three principal countries which take it fell off greatly during the year as the following figures shew:—

To United Kingdom	3,898,033	3,577,844
To United States	1,156,205	881,312
To France	119,309	2,073

On the other hand Austria, which took only 12,940 cwt. in 1875-76, took 53,460 last year, and the supplies to Australia increased from 10,741 cwt. to 13,341 cwt.

96. The export of the manufactures of jute increased in value by more than 47 per cent. following on an increase last year of nearly 105 per cent. The development of the trade during the last six years will be apparent from this table:

	Rs.
1871-72	18,88,586
1872-73	18,95,412,	the increase being	0·3 per cent.

1875-76	48,91,813,	„	105 „
1876-77	71,94,776,	„	47 „

The value of the exports of the year was divided between the various classes of goods as follows:—

			Value.
Power-loom bags . .	No.	29,275,590 . .	Rs. 58,43,408

The export to the United States of bags required in California for corn-sacks increased enormously, having risen from 2,942,050 in number to 12,768,079. China also took very largely increased quantities, and the shipments to the United Kingdom shewed material increase, having risen from 835,399 bags to 1,874,893 bags.

The mills have done a very active business during the year in the manufacture of bagging for the great quantities of rice thrown into the famine-stricken districts, and it is possible that the great demand in this direction has so raised prices as to be the cause of the slight restriction of the exports to foreign countries which the returns of the first half of 1877-78 exhibit.

97. The exports of lac largely increased in quantity, having risen from 103,583 cwt. to 128,712 cwt., while the value on the other hand shews an excessive decline, having fallen from Rs. 75,57,474 to Rs. 53,69,764. The fall in price of shell-lac, which is by far the largest part of the export, has been so great and so persistent that the Government has found it necessary to revise the rates of export duty in order to make them approximate more closely to the actual market value. Existing stocks in England and the United States are heavy, and production keeps on unabated, so that there does not appear to be an early prospect of a rise in prices.

Lac-dye, which for a long time was in a most depressed condition, underwent revival during the year, the exports having almost doubled in quantity. The greatest part of the rest of the exports under the head of lac consists of button-lac, which is really only another form of shell-lac; the melted resin being dropped from a height and formed into lumps instead of being spread into the sheets which form shell-lac.

98. The export of oils does not shew as much progress as might be wished. Their value in 1872-73 was 33½ lakhs of rupees, and in 1876-77 it amounts to only Rs. 37¾ lakhs, after having in the year previous reached Rs. 42⅓ lakhs. Very little animal, essential, or mineral oil is exported from the country, the shipments consisting mostly of the fixed vegetable oils, and amongst these castor-oil and the dregs of gingelly oil occupy the most important place. More than half of the castor-oil is sent to the United Kingdom, and of the rest the greater part is taken by Australia, the Straits, and Mauritius. It is almost exclusively exported from Bengal. The dregs of gingelly oil are an export from Madras to Ceylon.

It is strange that as yet more attention has not been given to the manufacture of oil in this country with a view to export. We export oilseeds to the value of about 5½ millions sterling, leaving the conversion of these seeds into oil to be done in the countries which take them. It is obvious that we lose a good deal by sending away the raw material in this way instead of making it into oil, for we have to pay a heavy freight on that portion of the seeds which might with advantage remain in the country after the oil has been expressed and sent away; by not keeping this refuse we lose much valuable matter for manure and cattle-food; and we incur heavy risk of deterioration of the cargoes by the heating of the seeds in transit. No doubt if the oil were expressed by natives without European supervision, it might be difficult to find a market for it, owing to apprehensions of fraudulent adulteration, but if Europeans were to set up oil mills and attach a mark to the oils expressed by them, that mark being a guarantee for a fixed standard quality, we might with great benefit to all concerned in the trade and to the country at large, more especially to the live stock of the agricultural community, find our exports of seeds reduced by one-half while our exports of oil were correspondingly increased. It is time for a change in the oilseed trade, for the unnecessary export year after year of at least four million hundredweight of material for oil-cake, while the cattle of this country die off, like flies in a frost, when drought destroys the scanty pasture which is their only sustenance, is the reverse of good policy and good sense.

99. The export of oilseeds has increased enormously during the last three years, as the following figures testify:—

	Cwt.	Rs.
1871-72	5,124,765	2,72,81,272
1872-73	2,779,243	1,50,82,410
1873-74	4,433,270	2,36,14,508
1874-75	6,074,756	3,23,59,503
1875-76	10,506,822	5,46,19,818
1876-77	9,582,865	5,31,91,240

The diminution of the exports in the last of these years was the result of an unfavourable outturn of the harvest of some kinds owing to the deficient rainfall of last winter, but the exports of the first six months of the current year promise a very large trade before the end of next March, the quantity already exported amounting to very nearly eight million hundredweight.

The details of the most important of the different kinds of seeds exported are shewn in the table attached :—

	1875-76.		1876-77.
	Cwt.	Rs.	Cwt.	Rs.
Linseed . .	6,282,512	3,31,71,635	5,614,617	3,01,54,374
Rapeseed . .	2,241,843	1,08,48,208	2,088,760	1,14,29,244
Teel or gingelly .	1,409,908	78,74,782	1,307,815	86,82,937
Poppy . .	253,326	13,54,194	351,133	18,43,647

The four kinds of seeds here mentioned constituted 97·9 per cent. of the whole trade of the year. The exports of linseed were thus distributed: 3,740,362 cwt. to England, 743,897 cwt. to the United States, 726,495 cwt. to France (an extremely large increase in the trade as compared with the previous year), 233,644 cwt. to Belgium, 88,386 cwt. to Holland, 75,351 cwt. to Egypt. Of the rapeseed more than 1½ million cwts. were sent to England, 320,354 cwt. to France, 222,487 cwt. to Belgium, 42,900 cwt. to Germany. The bulk of the exports of teel or gingelly seed is sent to France, which took 1,172,219 cwt. during the year, and 110,187 cwt. went to Italy. In both countries this oil is extensively employed as a substitute for olive oil and in the manufacture of soap. The exports of poppy seed were sent to France and England, France taking 185,964 cwt. and England 164,748 cwt.

The seed trade is mostly in the hands of the Greeks, and is of a very speculative character.

100. Under the stimulus of high prices caused by a deficiency in the silk harvest of Europe, Indian raw silk was shipped for a part of the year in tolerably large quantities. The trade however fell off again before the close of the year, and it has since returned to the dull and depressed condition which has characterised it for the last four or five years.

The quantity exported was 1,417,893 lbs., being 8 per cent. in excess of that which was shipped in 1875-76, though still far below the quantities of previous years. The value of the exports was Rs. 77,69,036, as compared with Rs. 41,59,614, being an increase of more than 86 per cent., the average price per pound having risen from Rs. 3·17 to Rs. 5·47. The exports of the current year again shew a reduction in quantity and a diminution in the average value per pound.

In recording the continued depression of the trade in raw silk, we have not the consolation, which we have when looking at the trade in cotton and jute, of thinking that though the raw material is in a bad way, the trade in the manufactured article is prosperous. The trade in silk goods languished during the year, the value of the exports reaching only 22⅓ lakhs of rupees compared with over 24 lakhs in 1875-76, nor does there seem to be any present prospect of improvement.

The state of the trade altogether in both raw and manufactured silk is such that the conviction forces itself on one that its day is passed, and that India will never again be a great silk-producing country. The extinction of the trade would be a most serious affliction to a considerable section of the population in the silk-producing districts of Bengal, which province is the chief seat of sericultural industry in India, and to them the stagnation of the trade is now a source of acute suffering. It is possible that the industry of the spinning of the silk of the Bombyx mori (or mulberry worm) may be hereafter replaced by one in the silk produced by the undomesticated worm, known as the tasar. But as yet there is but little sign of the creation of a new industry in this direction. Bengal produces tasar silk on a small scale, the exports being worth about 3¼ lakhs of rupees, but much is still required before this silk can be woven into a fabric which will commend itself to the European consumer, and experiments in this direction have not as yet had any practical result.

101. Sugar.—The failure of the beetroot crop in France, and of the maple in North America, gave rise to an unusually active demand for sugar amongst the refiners of England, and the trade in the article was brisk, the quantities exported and the average values having materially increased. The exports for the last five years have been as follow:

	Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	630,938	49,27,432
1873-74	294,818	22,78,227
1874-75	498,054	31,92,383
1875-76	420,762	25,39,374
1876-77	1,093,625	92,51,961

Compared with 1875-76, the quantity exported increased by nearly 160 per cent., but the value increased by more than 264 per cent., the average price per cwt. having risen from Rs. 6·03 per cwt. to Rs. 8·45 per cwt. The increase in the trade has continued during the present year, but cannot be expected to continue much longer. Prices must fall presently, and with a fall in prices will come a diminution in the exports. It is unfortunate that directly a demand arises for any of our staples, the price rises to an unreasonable degree, not justified either by the excited state of the market or the actual worth of the article. Native dealers are very sensitive in noting and following up a rise in the market, but they are by no means so swift to lower the prices for their goods when the market shews a lower tendency. The consequence is that a trade which might have proceeded on a more restricted but still extensive scale, leaving reasonable profits to merchants and producers, is suddenly checked, and the attention of consumers in Europe is at once turned to other directions, India only being resorted to when other sources of supply fail. Instead of trade gradually rising and falling, the market rises at once and remains for a few months in a state of dangerous inflation and excitement, and then falls as suddenly into a collapse.

Of the whole quantity exported during the year, the United Kingdom took 903,022 cwt., France 62,769 cwt., Italy 38,894 cwt., the United States 18,024 cwt., Ceylon 30,558 cwt., and the remainder was mostly sent to Arabia and other neighbouring countries.

102. The exports of tea continue on an increasing scale; the exports of the last five years were as follow:

	lb.	Rs.
1872-73	17,789,911	1,57,76,907
1873-74	19,324,235	1,74,29,256
1874-75	21,137,087	1,93,74,292
1875-76	24,361,599	2,16,64,168
1876-77	27,784,124	2,60,74,251

The cultivation of tea in India spreads and extends year after year, and the produce is better known and better liked in the English market, to which it is almost exclusively shipped, but the recent increase in the trade is, though partly the result of increased supply and increased demand, also partly the consequence of the state of exchange, which has made tea a favourite (though not always the best) medium for remittances home.

Cultivation is extending, and it is estimated that the next crop will exceed 35,000,000lb.

Out of the 27,784,124lb. exported during the year, 27,718,777lb. were sent to England and 42,269lb. to Australia. Exports to other countries are quite insignificant. It would seem that the trade with Australia is capable of development, and perhaps attention might be given to it with profit to those interested in tea. That colony at present receives the greatest part of its supplies from China.

The following table shews the relative imports of tea into England from India and from China:

These figures shew that the proportion of Indian to China tea landed in England during the last five years was:

In 1872, as 1 to 9·7
„ 1873, „ 1 to 7·4
„ 1874, „ 1 to 7·5
„ 1875, „ 1 to 6·7
„ 1876, „ 1 to 5·6
„ 1877, „ 1 to 5·5

The average value of Chinese tea per pound compared with Indian tea, was:

103. The exports of Teak wood fell considerably below the level of 1875-76, having amounted to only 45,108 tons, worth Rs. 33,27,644, compared with 60,612 tons, worth Rs. 44,06,182, the reduction in quantity being also accompanied by a small reduction in average value. Most of the teak exported from India is shipped to England, Rangoon and Maulmain, but chiefly the latter, being the two ports of shipment. The quantities sent from other parts of India are insignificant. Of timber other than teak, it may be said that India exports none. The only other wood exported to a tolerably large value is sandal wood, of which China takes most, a good deal being burnt in the joss-houses. The total exports last year were valued at Rs. 2,61,325.

104. The export of raw wool continues on an increasing scale as regards quantity, but the recorded value of the year is smaller than that of the preceding year. The figures for the last three years are:

	lb.	Rs.
1874-75	21,290,782	95,99,009
1875-76	23,767,692	1,09,42,002
1876-77	24,056,767	1,07,73,720

From Bombay 17 million pounds were shipped and from Sind over 7 millions. Most of that which is shipped from Bombay is brought thither from Kurrachee. The Indian trade in raw wool is confined to this province.

105. In the following table will be found the relative proportions of free and dutiable goods (the produce or manufacture of India) exported from the country during the last five years:

	Free goods. Value.	Dutiable goods. Value.	Percentage of free goods.	Percentage of dutiable goods.
1872-73	40,67,90,913	12,77,00,920	76·10	23·90
1873-74	39,57,41,031	13,54,03,244	74·50	25·50
1874-75	41,90,13,670	12,59,97,239	76·88	23·12
1875-76	44,13,40,358	12,09,09,280	78·50	21·50
1876-77	49,66,17,721	9,27,71,272	84·25	15·75

106. Manufactured articles constituted about 13 per cent. of the total exports, the proportion last year being about 11 per cent.

COIN AND BULLION.

107. The following tables shew the movements of the precious metals between India and other countries during the last five years, the values being stated in rupees:

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS OF GOLD.

	Imports.	Exports.	Nett imports.
1872-73	2,62,23,712	7,90,086	2,54,33,626

1872-73	4,55,65,850	1,29,80,790	3,25,85,060
1873-74	5,79,25,336	1,91,40,711	3,87,84,625

Gold and Silver	35,22,70,073	11,06,75,933	24,15,94,140

108. From these statements it will be observed that in 1876-77 India imported less gold and exported much more than in previous year, the exports of the year being in fact so large that only 20¾ lakhs remained in the country compared with an average nett import of more than 183 lakhs. Both the imports and exports of silver were much in excess of those of the four previous years of the period, the imports amounting to nearly 1,000 lakhs against 346 lakhs in the year 1875-76, while the exports rose to 279 lakhs compared with an average export of 154 lakhs.

CUSTOMS REVENUE.

109. The gross and nett customs revenue for the last five years has been as follows:

	1872-73.		1873-74.		1874-75.		1875-76.		1876-77.
	Gross.	Nett.	Gross.	Nett.	Gross.	Nett.	Gross.	Nett.	Gross.	Nett.
Imports	4,17,87,759	4,06,93,617	4,16,52,185	4,09,07,751	4,38,48,587	4,30,53,576	4,25,32,394	4,17,86,806	4,17,09,470	4,10,21,211
Exports	79,93,183	79,13,453	72,44,137	70,98,411	66,24,334	64,64,683	71,30,006	69,83,097	60,50,900	59,76,357

The returns exhibit on the side of imports a decrease of somewhat more than eight lakhs of rupees, the revenue having declined with the imports of goods. The principal decrease occurred in grey piece goods, which fell off by Rs. 2,76,785. Cotton yarn and coloured piece goods fell off by Rs. 31,648 and Rs. 89,483 respectively. The revenue from white piece goods slightly increased, but in most of the items under the general head there was a decline, and the total decrease under cotton twist and manufactures generally amounted to Rs. 4,01,520, being nearly half of the total decline in the revenue realised from all imported goods. The receipts from salt, liquors, and metals were larger than in the previous year. The fluctuations of the revenue in the most important articles for the last five years are exhibited in the following table:

	Salt.	Cotton twist and manufactures.	Liquors.	Metals.	Silk raw and manufactured.	Woollen piece goods.	Other articles.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73 . . .	2,53,04,597	81,63,343	26,10,678	9,90,348	7,29,028	3,58,754	36,31,011
1873-74 . . .	2,48,72,450	84,25,104	26,63,876	9,29,308	8,18,552	3,32,097	36,10,798
1874-75 . . .	2,57,07,901	90,56,354	28,72,408	13,32,091	9,22,705	2,89,776	36,67,352
1875-76 . . .	2,47,63,428	87,21,459	31,14,084	10,95,282	7,37,644	4,32,863	36,67,634
1876-77 . . .	2,51,72,734	83,19,939	33,35,577	11,46,199	4,49,720	3,82,976	29,02,325

The chief revenue paying items are the first four in the table. The proportion of the revenue derived from each during the year to the whole import revenue was—Salt, 60·3 per cent., cotton twist and goods 19·9 per cent., liquors 7·9 per cent., metals 2·7 per cent.

110. There are only three articles now subject to duty on export from India, viz., indigo, rice, and lac. The duty levied on these in the last five years are as follow:—

	Indigo.	Rice, husked and unhusked.	Lac.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1872-73	4,72,098	61,74,968	81,764
1873-74	4,72,902	52,96,862	1,03,337
1874-75	3,33,512	45,41,540	94,956
1875-76	4,53,849	54,95,791	2,32,019
1876-77	4,11,319	52,97,345	3,39,521

On indigo and rice the export duty is fixed at a certain rate on the quantity exported, and the realisations therefore rise or fall with the increase or decrease of the quantities shipped. On lac the duties were fixed, until last July, on certain tariff valuations, and consequently the revenue obtained from this article has been during the last two years no fair indication of the state of the trade. The tariff valuations were fixed at a time when the prices were abnormally and excessively high, and though the exports in quantity only slightly exceeded those of previous years, while the values were much less, the customs revenue shows a large increase. The duty has now been fixed at a certain rate on the quantity, the rate bearing a fair proportion to the present low market values. Lac is therefore no longer unduly weighted, but the Customs revenue derived from it in the current year will be considerably below that which was realised in 1876-77. All kinds of lac, except button and shell-lac, have been exempted from duty, but in these two descriptions is comprised almost all the trade.

SHIPPING.

111. The total numbers and tonnage of the shipping which entered and cleared to and from Indian ports during the last five years were as follow, the figures shewing not much increase in the numbers of the vessels, though the aggregate tonnage and the average capacity of each vessel have very largely increased:

	No.	Tons.	Average tonnage.
1872-73	12,466	4,759,980	382
1873-74	12,739	4,647,410	365
1874-75	12,437	4,825,542	388
1875-76	12,460	5,428,986	435
1876-77	12,764	5,634,042	441

112. The number and tonnage of the vessels entered were:

	No.	Tons.
1872-73	6,095	2,371,529
1873-74	6,265	2,301,265
1874-75	6,355	2,434,929
1875-76	6,259	2,629,923
1876-77	6,376	2,791,884

It might have been expected that the decrease in the imports of merchandise would have been accompanied by a decrease in the number or gross tonnage of vessels entering

Indian ports; but the decline in the imports of merchandise was more than compensated by the great demand which arose for vessels to carry food-grains from Calcutta to the Madras Presidency, and this demand resulted in a great influx of vessels to meet it. The number of vessels in the river Hooghly since the beginning of the calendar year has been extremely and unusually large. The increase in the quantity of exports to foreign countries was also a considerable factor in the causes of the increased tonnage which entered Indian ports.

113. The number and tonnage of the vessels cleared during the same period was:

	No.	Tons.
1872-73	6,371	2,388,451
1873-74	6,474	2,346,145
1874-75	6,082	2,390,613
1875-76	6,201	2,799,063
1876-77	6,388	2,842,158

114. The foregoing tables include steamers as well as sailing vessels, undistinguished. The following figures, relating to steamers separately, shew the progress which has been made during the last three years in the employment of steam-power in the carrying trade between India and other countries:

Entries and clearances of steamers.

	Entered.		Cleared.
	No.	Tons.	No.	Tons.
1874-75 . .	819	944,233	808 . . .	928,218
1875-76 . .	994	1,097,284	1,024 . . .	1,146,916
1876-77 . .	1,060	1,167,975	1,065 . . .	1,191,361

In the first of these three years (there are no earlier figures distinguishing steamer traffic separately) the steam tonnage was about 39 per cent. of the whole tonnage; in the two later years it was more than 41 per cent. The number and tonnage of steamers which entered in ballast during the year shews a large increase over those of the two previous years, the figures being:

	No.	Tons.
1874-75	81	73,718
1875-76	102	80,414
1876-77	163	131,366

The number and tonnage of steamers leaving India without cargoes are considerably less than those which enter in that condition:

	No.	Tons.
1874-75	26	21,714
1875-76	41	21,905
1876-77	43	26,028

115. For the last two years no steamer or sailing vessel has left Bengal without a cargo: in 1874-75 (the famine year) 7 steamers with a gross capacity of 7,311 tons, so left. In the previous year (1873-74) one vessel of 1,941 tons left without a cargo. With these eight exceptions, none of the vessels which came to Bengal left without merchandise on board. In other provinces, Bombay and Burma especially, it is sometimes difficult to find freight for vessels, and ships not unfrequently come round from Bombay to Calcutta to find a cargo here. The number of clearances in ballast from Indian ports is swelled by an enormous number under the head of Madras, but these are mostly native craft of small average tonnage, trading between the southern ports of Madras and Ceylon, the Maldives and the Straits, carrying on what is practically a coasting trade of a very petty character. Much the same may be said of Sind and its trade with Mekran and Sonmiáni. Excluding these, it may be said that of vessels carrying on the trade of India with distant countries, not more than 60 vessels averaging about 700 tons each, were unable to find cargoes, being less than 2 per cent. of the whole of the clearances.

116. The total number and tonnage of entries in ballast of all vessels, sailing and steam, during the last five years, are shewn below :—

	No.	Tons.
1872-73	2,586	663,190
1873-74	2,707	652,848
1874-75	2,799	637,149
1875-76	2,624	650,030
1876-77	2,818	716,882

117. The percentage of the tonnage of entries in ballast to all the tonnage entered was—

1872-73	27·9 per cent.
1873-74	28·3 „ „
1874-75	26·1 „ „
1875-76	24·7 „ „

118. The following table shews the progress made in the transit of steamers to and from India viâ the Suez Canal, the figures giving the number and tonnage of the steamers which entered and cleared at Indian ports by that route :—

	No.	Tons.
1872-73	532	626,824
1873-74	623	816,527
1874-75	822	1,133,968
1875-76	1,005	1,440,270
1876-77	1,040	1,518,690

More than 64 per cent. of the total steam tonnage which entered and cleared at Indian ports during the year was carried through the Suez Canal.

119. The following table shews the movement of shipping during the past three years between India and the principal countries with which trade is carried on. The figures represent entries and clearances combined :

* The figures opposite these heads for the year 1874-75 represent entries and clearances from and to the coasts of the Arabian and Persian Gulfs respectively.

120. Nationalities.—The British ships which entered and cleared amounted altogether to 3,674 vessels, aggregating 4,014,511 tons, being in the ratio of 28·78 per cent. of the total number of shipping, and of 71·25 per cent. of the total tonnage.

The figures of British tonnage are —

	Vessels.	Tons.
1872-73	3,600	3,266,880
1873-74	3,317	3,135,130
1874-75	3,419	3,305,302
1875-76	3,448	3,725,075
1876-77	3,674	4,014,511

The proportion of British to Foreign tonnage during the last three years has been: in 1874-75, 68·49 per cent.; in 1875-76, 68·61 per cent.; in 1876-77, 71·25 per cent. Foreign shipping find it difficult to compete with British ships, these latter being much more favourably situated for the obtainment of freight to this country from England. French and other European and American shipping often find it difficult to obtain a full cargo on the Continent or America for Indian ports, and frequently vessels discharge their cargoes in other neighbouring countries and come on to India to load with rice or other produce. Such vessels of course cannot afford to carry away cargo from India at rates which can be profitably taken by British vessels which are filled with cargo when they enter and when they clear.

121. The figures of vessels under British Indian registry are—

	Vessels.	Tons.
1872-73	6,214	587,664
1873-74	6,479	634,661

1875-76	3,970	534,946
1876-77	3,688	536,060

The proportion to all tonnage of the British Indian tonnage employed in the foreign trade in 1876-77 was 9·51 per cent.

122. Foreign shipping represented 15·35 per cent. of the aggregate tonnage of the year. The following statement shews the number and tonnage of the foreign vessels employed in the trade for the last five years:—

	Vessels.	Tons.
1872-73	1,783	842,721
1873-74	1,697	796,082

1875-76	1,704	953,466

COASTING TRADE.

125. The coasting trade returns are unfortunately still very untrustworthy. Quantities are in many instances overstated, sometimes to a gigantic extent; in other cases values are understated either deliberately or by accident, entries often being made at random by importers or shippers; and but too frequently the distinction made in the returns between goods of foreign and goods of Indian origin is purely fictitious, the practice being in many ports to require no declaration from merchants but to separate the items into the two classes according to the sense of the fitness of things possessed by the clerks of the Custom House. The law, as it stands, does not in the opinion of some officers provide for the obtainment of correct statistical information from merchants, nor would the examination of goods generally be either feasible or expedient: it is not feasible because the cost of an adequate establishment of preventive officers would be excessive, nor would it be expedient, the trade being free, to impede it by inquisitorial measures. The law, however, will shortly be so modified as to provide for the return of accurate information for all classes of goods, penalties being imposed in flagrant cases, and if the new provisions are properly and judiciously worked, it will be possible to attain to a much closer approximation to accuracy, without undue interference with trade, than has hitherto been possible. It must be said, however, that it will depend to a great extent upon the officers of Customs whether the law will be successfully worked or not. As yet Customs officials have seemed to think that their whole duty was performed when they secured the realisation of the dues of the State and prevented infringement of the fiscal regulations; and many have yet to learn that while this is their first duty, another and hardly less important task is to secure the information which forms the basis of an accurate and complete record of the trade of the country.

126. The total value of the coasting trade of the year shews an extraordinary increase over the trade of previous years, as will be seen from the following figures:

	Imports.	Exports.	Total.
1872-73 .	12,00,79,268	13,37,11,090	25,37,90,358
1873-74 .	16,26,91,950	18,62,12,504	34,89,04,454
1874-75 .	15,53,06,022	18,16,40,248	33,69,46,270
1875-76 .	14,94,27,609	16,56,88,765	31,51,16,374
1876-77 .	22,90,59,826	25,06,64,047	47,97,23,873

The increase, which amounts to no less than Rs. 16,46,07,499, being 52·23 per cent. in excess of the trade of the year 1875-76, is due almost entirely to the famine in Southern India and the Deccan and the transit of grain thither from Upper and Eastern India. The total exports of merchandise from Bengal increased from 502½ lakhs to 955 lakhs, i. e., by about 90 per cent., and the imports into the Madras Presidency rose from 377 lakhs to 901 lakhs, an increase of nearly 139 per cent.

127. While the statistics are still in the condition described above, as well as in previous reviews, it is useless to attempt any detailed account of the aspects and fluctuations of the coasting trade. A few general remarks on the main features of the trade of the year will suffice for the present.* The most prominent feature was the abnormally great traffic in food grains caused by the scarcity in the Deccan and Southern India. The following table shews the import trade in food stuffs during the year, as compared with the year 1875-76:

Description of grain.	1875-76.		1876-77.
	Cwt.	Rs.	Cwt.	Rs.
Gram	223,204	7,37,025	719,661	32,31,718
Rice (in the husk)	1,711,281	38,86,184	2,822,064	83,08,307
„ (not in the husk)	2,473,809	94,15,737	9,249,400	4,82,75,392
Wheat.	123,521	5,00,533	153,063	7,34,783
Pulse	250,032	8,79,180	517,943	21,17,708
Other sorts	247,207	6,74,130	1,537,638	63,78,842

About three quarters of a million tons (749,988 tons) were imported compared with a quarter of a million (251,452 tons) in 1875-76, and of the whole amount no less than 645,145 tons were poured into the ports in the Madras Presidency. Of the remaining 105,000 tons, upwards of 80,000 were imported into the Bombay Presidency. The principal sources of supply of these food stuffs were:

	Cwt.
Gram:
Bengal	262,173
Bombay	184,629
Rice in the husk (paddy):
Bombay	403,359
Burma	687,007

* Note—In treating of the articles of trade separately I have confined my remarks to the trade in that portion of them which was of Indian origin.

	Cwt.
Rice not in the husk:
Bengal	6,425,238
Bombay	122,181
Burma	271,484
Wheat:
Bengal	54,945
Bombay	56,333
Pulse:
Bombay	140,984
Bengal	137,171
Other sorts:
Bombay	415,605
Sind	217,002
Bengal	56,959

These figures shew that though the Presidency of Bombay was itself suffering from dearth, great quantities of food stuffs passed through on their way by sea to Madras. There were about 20,780 tons of grain undescribed, mostly the millets, jowâri and bâjri, 20,167 tons of paddy or unhusked rice, 9,231 tons of gram, 6,109 tons of husked rice, 7,049 tons of pulse, and 2,816 tons of wheat, sent during the year from Bombay mostly to the ports on the Malabar Coast. These grains were largely the produce of the Central Provinces and of the adjoining Native States, and of the North-Western Provinces.

Burma sent about 34,350 tons of paddy and 13,574 tons of rice, the greater part of the husked rice of that country being reserved for export to foreign countries.

Bengal stands much ahead of the other provinces in the supply of food stuffs to Southern India, the imports from that province, mostly into Madras ports, having amounted to 13,108 tons of gram, 321,261 tons of husked rice, 2,040 tons of paddy, 2,747 tons of wheat, 6,858 tons of pulse, and 2,847 tons of undescribed grains.

As the famine traffic still continues, a review of the whole trade may be deferred until the completion of the accounts for the current year.

128. Although the famine and the consequent activity of the grain trade were the main features of the year, so far as the coasting trade statistics are concerned, there was otherwise a general though not large increase in trade, principally due to increased imports of country made cotton twist and piece goods.

The trade in raw cotton is to a great extent represented by the import of this staple into Calcutta from Bombay, Madras, and Burma. Of the total quantity exported, viz., 131,327 cwt., as much as 112,633 cwt. were shipped to Bengal, representing a value of nearly 24½ lakhs of rupees. The trade was somewhat less than in the preceding year, in consequence of a decline in the shipments from Madras, where the cotton as well as the food crops were affected by drought, and in supplies from Burma, which fell off very greatly, owing, it is said, to low prices in Calcutta and the absence of demand from China to which country much of the Burma cotton sent to Calcutta is re-shipped. The low prices of cotton in Europe, however, diverted a good deal of Bombay cotton to Calcutta, and this diversion may account for the neglect of Burma cotton.

129. The exports of twist and yarn rose from nine million pounds to 15¼ millions, and the value increased from Rs. 45,36,339 to Rs. 82,70,561. From Bombay the exports amounted to 10,697,038lbs., most of the rest being of Bengal production. The latter (twist of Calcutta manufacture) found its market in Burma, while the Bombay twist was shipped to Madras and Bengal. Exports of piece goods also materially increased, though not in such great proportion as twist, the trade of the two years being:

		Yards.	Rs.
GREY .	1875-76 . .	12,811,863	18,09,862
	1876-77 . .	15,443,970	24,28,857
WHITE .	1875-76 . .	248,550	89,649
	1876-77 . .	3,299,383	5,64,179
COLOURED .	1875-76 . .	3,718,481	14,19,702
	1876-77 . .	4,204,053	16,09,771

The exports of all three kinds amounted to 22,947,406 yards, valued at Rs. 46,02,807, in 1876-77, compared with 16,778,894 yards, valued at Rs. 33,19,213, in 1875-76.

The greatest part of the trade in grey and white goods belongs to Bombay, Madras having the largest share in coloured piece goods. The exports of the year from these two provinces were as follow :—

	Grey.	White.	Coloured.
	Yards.	Yards.	Yards.
From Bombay	13,858,780	2,532,005	648,016
„ Madras	1,310,150	709,624	3,278,370

In the other provinces the production of piece goods is mostly confined to the weaving of cloths required for consumption either in the family where they are woven or in the immediate neighbourhood, and they accordingly make no figure in the trade returns. The trade in cotton manufactures other than twist and piece goods is not large.

130. The other articles which may be noticed in this account of the coasting trade are manufactured jute, oils and oilseeds, silk, spices, sugar, tea, tobacco, teak wood, and raw wool.

131. The bulk of the trade in manufactured jute consists of gunny bags, and of these the exports were as follows for the two years :—

		Nos.	Rs.
GUNNY BAGS .	1875-76 . .	34,184,998	66,99,205
	1876-77 . .	37,175,837	80,97,195

Bengal furnishes most of the bags used in trade, sending great quantities to Burma for the package of rice and to Bombay and Madras, especially to the former, to be used in the packing of wheat, rice, and seeds.

132. Cocoanut and castor oil are the two most important items under oils. Exports of cocoanut oil amounted to 1,318,230 gallons, valued at Rs. 14,66,199. This oil is exclusively exported from the Madras Presidency, the greatest part going to Bombay ports, to which over a million gallons were sent during the year. The total exports of all kinds of oils were valued at nearly 45 lakhs of rupees during the year.

133. The trade in oil seeds is also very large, having amounted to the value of Rs. 55,89,003 during the year. Of the kinds specified in the returns teel or gingelly seed (Sesamun indicum) is much the most important, the trade having been valued at Rs. 23,34,007, the quantity reaching 360,424 cwt. Nearly 176,000 cwt. were sent from Bengal to Madras and Burma, 65,537 cwt. were shipped from Sind to Bombay, and from the latter Presidency over 45,000 cwt. went to Madras. The oil is extensively used for culinary and other purposes by the natives.

Undescribed kinds of seed still shew very largely in the returns, their value having reached Rs. 23,25,976. A considerable proportion of this sum, however, (rather more than half) represents the value of castor seed exported from Madras to Bengal, where oil is extracted from the seed. In future returns the trade in castor seed will appear separately.

134. The value of the trade in raw silk was Rs. 18,90,586, a considerable decrease as compared with the trade of 1875-76, which amounted to Rs. 30,16,698. The trade is almost all in Bengal silk, the greater part going to Madras. In manufactured silk also (mostly piece goods) the trade is extensive, its value in the year having been nearly 21 lakhs of rupees. These goods also are exported almost altogether from Bengal, whence they are taken by Burma.

135. Spices.—The trade in spices is very large, its value last year having reached Rs. 69,84,327. Nearly two-thirds of this amount represent the value of betelnuts, of which enormous quantities are sent yearly from Bengal to Burma. The value of the exports last year to that province amounted to Rs. 24,37,427, almost all from Bengal. Bombay too takes considerable quantities from both Bengal and Madras, this latter province also sending a good deal to the Native State of Kutch. The total value of the trade in betelnuts was over 43 lakhs of rupees. The next most important item is pepper, the trade in which amounted to more than 13 lakhs of rupees, the largest proportion (over 11$\frac{1}{5}$ lakhs) having been exported from Madras ports chiefly to Bombay and, viâ Bombay, to Sind.

136. The trade in sugar is to a great extent carried on between Bengal and Bombay, the latter presidency supplementing its imports from Mauritius with sugar from Calcutta. The imports from Bengal increased very considerably during the year, the figures being—

	Cwt.	Rs.
1875-76	190,708	27,21,700
1876-77	261,213	36,41,883

Of the whole quantity shipped from Bengal 197,055 cwt. were sent to Bombay, which in the year before had received only 157,518 cwt. The sugar trade in Bengal was very active during the year, owing to the causes which have been mentioned in the review of the foreign trade. The high prices of sugar in the Mauritius reacted on the Bombay market, raising prices to a level which tempted large exports thither from Bengal.

137. The trade in Indian tea shews a slight falling off as compared with the trade in 1875-76, having been less than eight lakhs of rupees as compared with 8$\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs in the preceding year. The bulk of the trade consists of exports from Chittagong and Akyab to Calcutta. From Chittagong the recorded exports were 586,000lb., worth nearly 6 lakhs of rupees. The whole of the tea grown in Chittagong is shipped to Calcutta for sale and re-export to England. This tea is generally of very good quality, fetching a good price. From Akyab the exports are small, there being but one tea plantation in that district as yet, though the Arakan hill tracts in the immediate neighbourhood are very well adapted for the successful cultivation of tea. The district suffers much from want of population and of easy means of communication between the coast and the interior. Labour however may be imported into Akyab from Bengal even more cheaply than it can be imported into Assam, and the rivers are navigable for steamers of light draught for two or three hundred miles of their length. There is a good field in this district for the profitable employment of capital, in the cultivation of the land with industrial products, in the exploitation of its mineral resources, and in the provision of means of transport between the interior and the coast.

138. In tobacco-leaf the trade is large, its total value in the year having been more than 38 lakhs of rupees, of which more than 30$\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs represent the value of exports to Burma-viz., Rs. 24,09,620 from Bengal and Rs. 6,63,852 from Madras. Some portion, but comparatively very little, of this tobacco is returned to Bengal in the form of cigars, but the bulk is consumed in the province by the Burmans, who (men and women alike) are seldom without a cigar in their mouths. The manufacture is general, the cigars being made in most Burman households by the women. The rest of the coasting trade in tobacco-leaf consists in its transport from port to port within the provinces of Burma and Madras. Exports from Bengal to Burma shew a very large increase over the trade of the previous year.

In manufactured tobacco the trade is very small, being confined principally to the export of Madras cigars to the other provinces, chiefly Bengal.

139. In teakwood the trade has fallen off greatly. The trade lies in exports from Burma (from the ports of Maulmain and Rangoon), this province supplying the requirements of Continental India. The total exports for the last two years have been—

	Cubic tons.	Rs.
1875-76	105,438	69,59,905
1876-77	77,996	49,18,586

and in Burmese timber alone the trade was :—

	Cubic tons.	Rs.
1875-76	98,458	66,66,379
1876-77	70,817	45,80,188

The exports of teak to foreign countries also fell off largely during the year. One cause of the diminution is no doubt the extensive substitution of iron for wood in ship-building, but another cause is the rapid exhaustion of the forests by reckless felling. Systematic conservation of the forests in British territory is now in operation, but teak forests are of slow growth, and the evil effects of the mismanagement of former years will be felt for a very long time to come.

140. In raw wool the trade has increased: it is confined to exports from Kurrachee to Bombay, whence the greatest part is re-exported to Europe. The figures for the two years are :—

	lbs.	Rs.
1875-76	12,616,677	35,99,445
1876-77	12,653,235	37,40,941

Prices have risen in greater proportion than quantities.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT

FROM

THE POLITICAL RESIDENT, ADEN,

To

THE SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT, BOMBA

Aden Residency, the 13th June 1877.

SIR,

In forwarding the Aden Trade and Navigation Returns for 1876-77, prepared by Mr. Pestonji Rustomji Toorkey, Registrar of Trade, as well as a full report on the same by Captain Hunter, First Assistant Resident, for submission to Government, I would request you to particularly invite attention to the subject of the commercial prosperity of Aden, and to urge that Government may be moved to place this Report on the Editors' table with a view to its attracting public and individual criticism, which would prove most invaluable in future years.

2. I would also beg your attention to para. 44 of the Report, in the hope that Government may be induced to ask the Chambers of Commerce, both in India and England, for information as to the advantages and disadvantages to owners of vessels calling at Aden.

3 In submitting these papers, I would request your notice to the great care and attention which has been bestowed in their preparation both by Captain Hunter and Mr. Pestonji Rustomji Toorkey, and I would suggest that, if Government would be pleased to express an opinion on them, it would do much to encourage the officers engaged in the compilation of these Returns in future.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

FRANCIS LOCH,

Brigadier-General and Political Resident.

REPORT ON THE TRADE AND NAVIGATION RETURNS OF ADEN FOR THE YEAR 1876-77.

Preliminary Remarks.

Expression of opinion of Government and Press on Returns invited.

1. It continues to be a matter for regret that Government have not, up to the present, found it convenient to take any notice of the Aden Returns. An expression of opinion would do much towards encouraging the officers engaged in their preparation. If this report could be laid on the Editors' table, it might attract independent criticism, which would prove of inestimable value in future years.

Nature of Trade. Non-inclusion of Transhipment Trade.

2. In considering the value to the mercantile community of a port like Aden, condemnation must not be made because credit is taken for merchandise that is re-exported. The Trade Returns of Aden are compiled in the same manner as those of other places, but in the nature of the trade itself there is a great difference; Aden itself produces nothing; but the position of the place, as an entrepôt for all the surrounding countries, gives to the merchants who frequent its markets an opportunity of turning their capital to account, as effectually as if the natural products, in which they trade, were found on its own sterile hills. Particular attention is again directed to the fact that the value of goods which have been transhipped without passing through the hands of local merchants, has not been included in the Returns, but that matter is noticed separately in this Report. At the same time it is maintained that the facilities for transhipment are an argument in favour of the commercial value and utility of the Port: practically there is little difference between Aden and Kurrachee; in the one case, goods are transferred from or to the railways, river flats and steamers, or sailing vessels—in the other they are transhipped from steamer to steamer. In Kurrachee a vessel takes a full cargo, in Aden she fills on her way out or home; but these, almost daily shipments of merchandise, aggregate considerably in value and quantity by the end of the year.

Preparation of Returns.

3. The Returns have been prepared, as last year, in accordance with the views of the Secretary of State for India. The printed forms have proved of great assistance, and enabled the submission of this Report earlier than the date on which it is ordinarily due.

Government Stores.

4. It has been found altogether impossible to obtain information regarding the Import and Export of Government Stores, especially those received and despatched by the Ordnance Department, and no very useful object would be obtained in pursuing the subject so long as it is understood that the value of these stores has been excluded from the Returns.

II.—Transhipment Trade.

Explanation of Valuation of Transhipment Trade.

5. Although no separate statement has been called for, showing the quantity and value of goods transhipped, yet the number of packages transferred from bottom to bottom during the past year, being known, is given below. In the Report for 1875-76 Rs. 800 was taken as the standard value of each package, including Treasure; but a more careful investigation has led to the conclusion that, except in case of Treasure, this estimate was placed much too high, and accordingly this year Treasure has been separated and the following plan adopted:—One package of each of the various descriptions of Merchandise and Treasure has been given a fixed value, the number of packages of each kind of Goods and Treasure has been multiplied by the value assigned to a single package as above, and the results are added together for the total value: thus one package of cloves is valued at Rs. 80, one package of ivory is valued at Rs. 800, 4,997 packages of cloves and 1,156 of ivory have been transhipped; therefore

1,156 × 800 = „ 9,24,800

Rs. 13,24,560. = the total value of cloves and ivory transhipped at Aden.

Principal Articles Transhipped.

6. The principal articles of merchandise transhipped are—

Arms and Ammunition, Cotton Piece-goods, Twist, Beads, Wines, and Liquors, Provisions and Oilman-stores, Fruits and Vegetables, Drugs and Medicines, Ivory, Gum, Metals, Hides and Skins, Tobacco, Sugar, Machines and Machinery, Matches, Soap, Grain and Pulse, Ships and parts of, Clocks and Watches, Spices, Silk Piece-goods, Seeds, Earthenware, Shells, Dyeing Materials, &c., &c., and Treasure.

Number and Value of Packages Transhipped.

7. The total amount of packages transhipped, and their estimated value is given in the following statement:—

From	To	Number of Packages.	Estimated Value.	Packages of Treasure.	Estimated Value.

	Total...	93,335	1,21,14,017	1,140	47,97,270

From the above it appears that goods to the value of nearly $1\frac{1}{5}$th million sterling and Treasure estimated at nearly $\frac{1}{2}$ million sterling have been transhipped, making a total of somewhat less than $1\frac{3}{4}$th million sterling. It is believed that, were the actual value of the transhipment trade known accurately, it would be found to fall but little short of £2,000,000.

The undermentioned countries have increased their Import Trade :—

Austria. — The articles exhibiting an increase in value imported are Flour, Timber, and Treasure.

France. — Treasure and Spirits have been imported in larger quantities.

East Coast of Africa. — In spite of a decrease in the value of Hides, Shells, and Treasure imported, yet Animals (living), Coffee, Feathers, Skins, Ghee, and Seeds have all contributed to swell the total value of merchandise.

Arabia. — The increase in the value of the Import Trade is small, and hardly noticeable.

Persia. — Wet Dates are responsible for the increase in the value of the Imports.

Calcutta. — Rice is yearly imported in larger quantities.

With the following countries there is a falling off in the value of the Import Trade :—

United Kingdom. — Although, as will be noticed hereafter, the quantity of Coal and Patent Fuel imported has increased, yet owing to the fall in the price of that commodity the declared value shows a decrease of upwards of 2½ lakhs. There is also a falling off of not less than 1 lakh in Treasure.

Italy. — The decrease is almost entirely in the value of Treasure imported.

Abyssinia. — Ivory and Treasure (the two principal articles of import from Massowah) contribute entirely to the decrease, which is probably due to the recent disturbed state of Abyssinia.

Zanzibar. — There has been a very large decrease in the quantity of Ivory imported, but an increase in Cloves.

Egypt. — Treasure accounts for the decrease in the value of the Imports.

Mauritius. — The decrease is entirely in the value of Sugar imported.

United States of America. — American Piece-goods have been imported direct in smaller quantities. They now arrive viâ the United Kingdom.

Straits Settlements. — The decrease is entirely in Treasure.

Bombay. — Silk, Raw and Piece-goods have been imported in less quantities.

Malabar Coast. — The decrease is chiefly in Spices.

Kutch. — There has been a falling off in the import of Tobacco and Cotton, Raw.

Causes of increase or decrease in quantity and value of principal Articles Imported.

12. The causes of the above fluctuations are supposed to be as follows:—

Animals (living).

There can be little doubt that the increase in quantity is due to the facilities for import afforded by the Egyptian Government Steamers, which continue to run to and from the African Coast during the south-west monsoon, when Country Craft are obliged to cease trafficking.

Coals.

Of the quantity of Coals and Patent Fuel imported, 72,535 tons of the former arrived viâ the Suez Canal and 21,876 tons of Coal and 9,671 tons of Patent Fuel came viâ the Cape. The decrease in value has been previously accounted for.

Coffee.

The decrease in quantity is small, and the increase in value is due to the increased demand.

Cotton, Raw.

This commodity has decreased both in quantity and value, owing to the small demand from the Red Sea Ports; considerable quantities have been sent back to India.

Cotton Twist.

The price of Twist has fallen, and the demand is decreasing.

Cotton Piece-goods.

The quantity imported is larger; but, owing to the competition amongst importers, the value has somewhat decreased.

Feathers.

The feather Trade continues steadily increasing year by year.

Fruits and Vegetables.

There has been a good Date crop in the Persian Gulf.

Grain and Pulse.

The increase is chiefly in Rice from Calcutta. This grain is rapidly becoming a favourite with the Somális in substitution of Jowári. The last-named cereal has been imported largely owing to a good crop having been obtained in Yemen.

Gum.

There has been no falling off in this Article of Import.

Hides and Skins.

A larger quantity of Skins, but a smaller quantity of Hides, has been imported. The latter article is now in less demand for Continental Markets.

Liquors.

The increase is hardly noticeable.

Ivory.

Ivory from Zanzibar is now transhipped instead of being consigned, as formerly, to local merchants, and, as before remarked, disturbances in Abyssinia have checked the Import Trade with Massowah.

Metals.

The increase will be accounted for under the head of Exports.

Provision and Oilman-stores.

An abnormally large quantity was imported in 1875-76, much of which still remains on hand.

Seeds.

The decrease is hardly worth remark.

Shells.

The falling off in the Mother-o'-Pearl Trade will be noticed under Export.

Silk—Raw and Piece-goods.

The market was over-stocked by large imports in the preceding year.

Spices.

There appears to be a growing demand for Cloves.

A cheaper description of Sugar is now imported from Zanzibar, and the more valuable sorts do not now arrive in such large quantities from Mauritius.

Sugar.

Tobacco. Large quantities of Tobacco have arrived from the Persian Gulf for re-export to Hodaida and Jeddah.

Treasure (Private). The increase in Treasure call for no remark.

Import Trade with Berbera and Zaila and independent Somáli Ports. 13. The following statement shows the Trade with Berbera for the past two years since the Egyptian occupation of that port :—

The increase in 1876-77 (in almost every article of import) is due partly to there having been a severe drought in 1875-76 and partly, no doubt, to the consolidation of the Egyptian power on the Somáli Coast and at Harrar. Another year's experience will enable a more trustworthy conclusion to be drawn as to the advantage of the change of status of the Somáli tribes. Unfortunately, in previous years, no separate register was kept of the Trade with Berbera. There is no material increase or decrease in the Trade with Zaila, the only other Egyptian port outside the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. Bulhar has ceased to be a port.

The following statement shows the Trade with the (as yet independent) Somáli Ports of Antarad, Karam, Alula, Angur, Bunder Ziada, Bunder Kassim, Bunder Muraya, Hais, and Maith :—

Causes of Increase or Decrease of Exports to certain Countries.

16. The fluctuations are noticed below :—

United Kingdom.	Coffee, Ivory, Shells (Mother-o'-Pearl), and Treasure exhibit large decreases in value.
Austria.	The increase is almost entirely in Coffee and Spices.
France.	Coffee and Spices exhibit an increase in export.
Holland.	Coffee is responsible for the decrease. An attempt was made to introduce the Mocha variety into Holland, but without success, that grown in the Dutch Settlements being preferred.
Italy.	The increase is entirely in Coffee.
Abyssinia.	The export of Cotton, Raw, has almost entirely ceased, but Cotton Piece-goods, to a somewhat higher value, have been despatched to Massowah.
East Coast of Africa.	The chief increase is in the value of American Piece-goods.
Zanzibar.	The increase is spread over Coffee, Cotton Piece-goods, and Treasure in small amounts.
Egypt.	Coffee, Feathers, Gum, and Treasure account for the increase.
Mauritius.	The increase is entirely in Coffee.
United States.	Coffee, Hides, and Skins have been exported in larger quantities.
Arabia (including Muskát).	Almost every article of Export shows a decrease, with the exception of Tobacco and Treasure.
Hongkong.	Cloves, Twist, and Treasure have been exported for the first time.
Japan.	Coffee and Ivory in small quantities have been exported.
Java.	Ghee is the principal Article of export.
Persia.	The increase is distributed over Coffee, Grain, and Treasure.
Straits Settlements.	Ghee and Wax are accountable for the increase.
Bombay.	The decrease is in Coffee, Ivory, Pearls, Mother-o'-Pearl Shells, Cloves, and Treasure.
Madras.	A small quantity of Jowári has been sent to Madras, probably in the hope of famine prices.
Cutch.	The decrease is in Coffee, American Piece-goods, and Madder.

Causes of Increase or Decrease in Quantity and Value of principal Articles Exported.

18. The causes of the increases or decreases noted in the above table are considered to have been as follows :—

Coffee.

This article of commerce not being consumed locally, the export usually balances the import, and the reason given for the fluctuation in value and quantity of the latter applies with equal force to the former.

Cotton, Raw.

The small demand is responsible for the decrease.

Cotton Twist.

There is no local consumption, and the same causes operate in producing fluctuation in Import and Export.

Cotton Piece-goods.

Piece-goods are disposed of locally and then exported ; hence the declared value on Export is always greater than that at the time of Import. It is worthy of remark that in Aden and the neighbouring countries, American Grey Goods are preferred to Indian of the same description ; and Indian, again, are in greater demand than English. The sizing of the latter kind of goods is alleged not to be so well suited to stand the violent method of cleansing adopted by semi-civilized races. Moreover, it is ascerted (with what truth it is not known) that the very great pressure used in packing raw cotton for export destroys the fibre, and renders goods manufactured from it less able to resist wear and tear than those woven from impressed cotton.

Feathers.

The Export is governed by the Import.

Fruits and Vegetables.

Owing to the good crop in the Persian Gulf, already noticed, shipments have been made direct to ports in this neighbourhood, which are usually supplied from the Settlement.

Grain and Pulse.

The low price of Grain in Aden and the neighbourhood has led to Native Craft taking on their cargoes to Jeddah, in the hopes of obtaining better prices, instead of disposing of them here.

Owing to the unfavourable rate of exchange prevailing during the past year,

Gums and Resins. Gum has been greatly used for remittance purposes.

Hides and Skins. For causes of fluctuation in quantity and value, see under Import.

The decrease in Export is dependent on the decrease in Import, for which the Ivory. reasons have already been given.

Metals. A demand has lately risen for Steel and Iron Bars for export to Red Sea Ports and interior.

Provisions and Oilmanstores. The large stock in hand at the end of 1875-76 has been exported freely.

Seeds. No reason can be given for the decrease beyond the ordinary fluctuations in trade.

Shells. The trade in Shells is declining, owing to the want of demand from Continental Markets.

Silk and Silk Piece-goods. The decrease in Imports has affected the Export.

Spices. The large stock imported is being gradually exported.

Sugar. For the cause of decrease, see under Import.

As previously noticed, large quantities have arrived from the Persian Gulf

Tobacco. which have been freely exported to Red Sea Ports and Abyssinia.

Treasure. The decrease in value of exports is hardly noticeable.

Comparative Statement of Increases and Decreases in Value of Exports and Imports.

19. As almost every article of trade is imported only to be re-exported after changing hands, the following statement will show to what extent the increases and decreases in the former affect the latter :—

VI.—Inland Trade.

Description of Kaffilah Routes.

20. In last year's report an account was given of the Kaffilah routes, but the information was not sufficiently complete, and it has accordingly been thought best to repeat it more fully.

Merchandise carried on Camels.

21. The rich produce of the highlands of Yemen is brought into Aden by camels, large Kaffilahs or Caravans of which arrive daily from the interior, and after a few days' rest again take their way home with return loads of suitable commodities.

Number of Camels that entered Aden, showing what they carried.

22. During 1876-77, 256,305 camels entered Aden against 275,844 in 1875-76, and the following statement shows what they brought :—

	No. of Camel-loads in 1875-76.	No. of Camel-loads in 1876-77.	Remarks.

Kaffilah Routes.

23. Besides the Fruit, Vegetables, Wood, Fodder, and Water which arrive from the Akrabi, Abdali, and Fadhli Districts, articles of commerce reach Aden by several other routes through the territories of tribes who have also been subsidized more or less.

Mafâlis Route.

24. Commencing from the westward there is, firstly, the Mafâlis route, by which the produce of the districts near Mocha and Hagariya are carried eastward through the territories of the Athwari, Dubaini, Rajai, Akrabi, and Abdali tribes into Aden. Coffee Berries, Grain and Pulse, Fruits, Vegetables, and Kat are the principal articles that are imported by this route, and dues varying from $\frac{3}{4}$ to 2 dollars per load are levied by the Athwari, Akrabi, and Abdali tribes.

Amoor Route.

25. The next is what is called the "Amoor" route, which takes its name from a sub-tribe of the Haushabi, who levy dues independently of those collected by the Chief of that tribe. Kaffilahs start from the neighbourhood of Taizz, pass into the territories of the Amri and thence to Al-Ghail, where they join the "Madrajah" or "Mawriya" routes, to be hereafter described. Coffee Berries, Coffee Clean, Wax, Ghee, Bastard Saffron, Grain, Fruits, and Kat are the principal articles carried. The taxes levied vary from $\frac{1}{16}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ dollars per load, according to the nature of the article transported.

Madrajah Route.

26. Branching off from the last-mentioned route at the borders of the Haushabi District, Kaffilahs occasionally turn southward through the Subaihi country; but the "Madrajah" route, as this track is called from a town of that name in the Makhdumi territory, is not much used, owing to the risk of attack from the predatory Subaihi tribes, whom no subsidizing seems to attempt into peaceful habits, and it is only when the Haushabi Chief, as not unfrequently happens, "cuts off the roads," as the Arabs say, that the Subaihi country is entered.

Mawiyah Route.

27. The "Mawiyah" route, so called from a town of that name in Turkish territory, passes through the Haushabi and Abdali districts into Aden. The produce of Udain, Iibla, Ibb, &c., consisting of Coffee Clean, Coffee Berries, Wax, Ghee, Bastard Saffron, Grain, Fruits, Kat, and Hides, is carried by this route, and dues varying from $\frac{1}{4}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ dollars per load are levied by the Haushabi in two places and Abdali in one.

Zhali Route.

28. The "Zhali" route, named after a town in the Amiri country, passes southward through the territories of the Amir, Alawi, Haushabi, and Abdali tribes.—Coffee Berries, Coffee Clean, Mats, Ghee, Bastard Saffron, Grain, Fruits, Madder, &c., from the districts round Sanna and the north are borne by this road, and dues varying from $\frac{1}{4}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ dollars per load are levied by the Amir, Alawi, Haushabi, and Abdali tribes.

Abyian Route.

29. The last remaining route is that called "Abyian" from the portion of the Fadhli District through which it passes. The produce of the Yaffai country—consisting of Coffee Berries, Madder, Wax, Honey, and Grain—arrive by this route. Taxes are paid varying from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ of a dollar per load to the Fadhli Chief on goods passing to Shugra, the port of that district, whence they are exported to Makalla and Shehr and the Persian Gulf. The Fadhli charges no dues on goods entering or leaving Aden.

Transit Dues leviable on Exports.

30. Taxes are levied by all tribes, except the Fadhli, on merchandise, &c., leaving Aden, at the same rates as prevail for goods passing towards the Settlement.

Trade checked owing to the levy of Transit Dues.

31. The vexations and delays which the levy of these imports necessitates on Kafilahs, tend to check the flow of trade into Aden by land; and were it possible, or rather expedient, to compound with other tribes, as has been done with the Fadhli and Subahi, for the total abrogation of these troublesome dues, no doubt Aden would be in a position to compete with Hodaida (in spite of advantages of situation) to the great disadvantage of the latter in the inland trade.

The Turks, it is confidently asserted, have recently given out to the Arabs that it is their intention to levy 1 per cent. on goods entering and 8 per cent. on goods leaving Aden, with the avowed purpose of resuscitating Mocha. The success of any such experiment is doubted for a variety of reasons that can hardly be entered into here.

Causes of Increase and Decrease. Inland Imports.

32. It will be observed that the only articles which show a decrease in Import are Grain, Water, and Wood. The first is due to the large imports by sea; the second may be attributed to the fact that a considerable quantity of Water—equal to at least fifty camel-loads—is now brought over daily in boats from the opposite side of the harbour for sale at Steamer Point; and the falling off in the quantity of Wood imported is accounted for by the restriction recently placed on the import of Greenwood for fuel.

Value of Land Import Trade.

33. The value of the Land Import Trade was estimated at Rs. 19,55,845, exhibiting an increase of upwards of Rs. 10,000 over that of the preceding year.

Value of Land Export Trade.

34. The Land Export Trade was declared to value Rs. 8,74,476, showing a decrease of Rs. 1,31,431 as compared with 1875-76. Cotton, Raw and Twist, Silk, Raw, and Tobacco are the articles which exhibit a decrease in Export, probably owing to the action of the Turks above alluded to.

Summary of Value of Land, Import and Export Trade for past 5 years.

35. The following statement exhibits the value of the Land Import and Export Trade during the past 5 years :—

VII.—Summary.

Summary of External Trade.

36. The following is a summary of the total value of the External Trade of Aden, excluding Government Stores and Treasure, for the year under review :—

Imports by Sea	Rs. 1,47,43,133
„ by Land	„ 19,55,845
„ Treasure	„ 21,04,601
		Rs. 1,88,03,579

„ by Land	„ 8,74,476
„ Treasure	„ 23,15,196
		Rs. 1,33,47,984
Grand Total...		Rs. 3,21,51,563
For 1875-76...		„ 3,45,60,635
Decrease...		Rs. *24,09,072

If to this be added the estimated value of the Transhipment Trade, a total of Rs. 4,20,62,850 is realized, or nearly 5 millions sterling.

From the above it appears that the aggregate value of the Imports and Exports for 1876-77 amounted to nearly 3½ millions sterling. It may be argued that the system of lumping Exports and Imports is one which conveys no true idea of the state of commerce. However, all who are conversant with such subjects must admit the necessity for a standard by which the trade of various places can be compared, and the above is the system followed in the Bombay Presidency, as Captain Playfair remarked in 1858, when his conclusions based on similar data were challenged: "It may involve a fallacy, but it can deceive no one; those who seek information can readily find it, and those whose aim is criticism rather than the elucidation of truth, will, whatever system be adopted, have no difficulty in discovering points at which to take exception."

Summary of Trade for past 5 years.

37. The entire trade of the Settlement (exclusive of Government Stores and Treasure, and not including the value of the Transhipment Trade for the past five years,) is summarized in the subjoined statement :—

Object with which Steamers and Sailing Vessels entered the Port.

39. Out of the 816 Steamers, 52 brought coals, 412 brought or took either cargo or passengers and also coals, 314 called for coals only, 27 put in for telegrams and letters, 1 arrived to await orders, 2 came in for bills of health, 1 put in to land a pilot, and 1 came to repair damages.

Out of the 40 Sailing Vessels, 17 brought coals, 19 arrived with other cargo, and 4 called for bills of health.

Increase and Decrease in Number and Tonnage of Vessels.

40. In comparing 1875-76 with 1876-77, it appears that there has been a decrease of 23 in the number, but an increase of 17,689 in the tonnage of Steamers, and a decrease of 6 in number and 1,290 in the tonnage of the Sailing Vessels. 26 fewer Native Craft entered the Port.

Causes of Decrease in number of Sailing Vessels and Steamers.

41. Yearly fewer Sailing Vessels arrive with coal, and no material increase in the number of Steamers calling can be expected until the harbour is deepened so as to allow of large Vessels leaving at all times of the tide and at all hours of the day and night. It is understood that a number of Steamers were engaged in the coasting trade in India in carrying grain instead of running through the Suez Canal (freights being so high); and this has no doubt tended to decrease the number of Vessels that have called.

Number and Tonnage of British, British Indian, and Foreign Vessels.

42. The following statement shows the Number and Tonnage of British, British Indian, and Foreign Vessels that entered and left the Port during the year 1875-76 and 1876-77 :—

Number of Vessels that called at Aden as compared with number that passed through Suez Canal and the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb.

43. The following table exhibits the Number of Vessels that passed the Suez Canal and Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, which either called at Aden or passed the Port during 1876 :—

Months.	Number of Merchant Vessels that called at Aden.	Number of Government Vessels that called.	Number of Vessels that did not pass Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb.	Number that passed the Port.	Total Number of Vessels through the Suez Canal.
January	63	1	8	70	142

There is evidence, therefore, that of the 1,364 Merchant Vessels which passed the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, 752, or 55 per cent., called at Aden.

Advantages and disadvantages to Vessels calling at Aden worthy of enquiry.

44. It would be very useful if the Chambers of Commerce in India and England could be asked to state the advantages and disadvantages to owners of Vessels in calling at Aden. There is cause to believe that Vessels belonging to several firms and companies do not enter the Port for reasons other than those over which Government can exercise control in obviating.

Comparison of Imperial, Indian and Colonial interests in Aden.

45. Of the 816 Vessels which called, 536, or 66 per cent., were trading with British India and Burmah. —(No. I.)

91, or 11 per cent., were British Vessels trading with Ports, one or both of which are Foreign.—(No. II.)

46, or $5\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., were Vessels that traded with the British Colonies. —(No. III.)

115, or $14\frac{1}{4}$ per cent., were Foreign Vessels trading between Ports both of which are Foreign.—(No. IV.)

28, or $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent., were Foreign Vessels trading between Ports, one of which is in the United Kingdom.—(No. V.)

It, therefore, appears that the respective interests of Great Britain, India, and the Colonies in Aden are in the following percentage :—

Great Britain—Nos. II. and V.	$14\frac{1}{4}$	per cent.
British India and Burmah—No. I....	66	do.
Colonies—No. III.....	$5\frac{1}{2}$	do.
Foreign—No. IV.	$14\frac{1}{4}$	do.

It must be observed that of the Vessels trading with British India and Burmah, 449 were under British colours, and therefore represent interests in the United Kingdom as well as in India.

F. M. HUNTER,

Assistant Resident, in charge Customs, Aden.
